Huge Serviceman Pay Hike Favored

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF

WASHINGTON (AP) — Almost tripling the figure asked by President Nixon, the Senate has voted servicemen a $2.7-billion raise, including a 125-percent pay hike for recruits.

By a vote of 51 to 27, the Senate Tuesday reversed an earlier endorsement of the Nixon administration's $1-billion pay boost and approved an amendment by Sen. Gordon Allott, R-Colo., adding another $1.7 billion.

The Senate acted two weeks after rejecting a proposal containing about the same amount of money but dividing it as the House had, between extra pay and allowances.

A recruit would get $301.50 in basic monthly pay under the Senate bill, compared with $268.50 in the House version, $201.90 under the administration plan and $134.40 under the existing pay scale.

The Senate bill raises the minimum pay for the lowest ranking officer from the current $450.60 a month to $612.30.

Two Choices

Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the Armed Services Committee and floor manager of the draft bill containing the money, charged the Allott amendment would either add an inflationary $1.7 billion to the $76-billion defense budget or force cutbacks in more vital defense work.

"We can't enact this amendment without grave consequences to our national defense," he told the Senate.

But Allott said it wouldn't be inflationary if taken out of other defense spending. He said it is only fair at a time when some military families are on welfare.

Sympathetic Chord

"It struck a sympathetic chord because everyone around here has known for some time that the lower grades have been shafted," the Colorado Republican said in explaining backing for his proposal.

His amendment uses pay scales drawn up by the Gates Commission, which was appointed by President Nixon and came out in favor of an all-volunteer force. The administration says it hopes to switch to such a force by mid-1973 but Stennis says he doubts that will be possible.

Several hours before passing the pay raise, the Senate agreed to vote next Wednesday on the McGovern-Hatfield amendment to cut off funds for U.S. operations in Indochina Dec. 31, and to vote June 23 on a move to limit debate on the rest of the draft bill.

Draft Extension

The two moves increased chances the draft-extension bill will be approved before the current draft law expires June 30.

Following approval of the Allott amendment, the Senate rejected 63 to 15 a proposal by Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, to keep the statute of limitations for prosecuting draft evaders at five years from the youth's 18th birthday. The bill makes a registrant liable for prosecution up to age 31 instead of 23.

—Approved 47 to 31 and

Particular Wars

Rejected an amendment by Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., to broaden the definition of conscientious objector from those who oppose war in any form to include those objecting to a particular war, such as the Vietnam conflict. The Supreme Court ruled recently that only those who oppose war in any form could be conscientious objectors.

Debate is due to start Thursday on the McGovern-Hatfield fund-cut-off amendment, defeated a year ago by a vote of 55 to 39.

Its supporters are counting on this week's lobbying activities by groups of lawyers, businessmen, labor officials and religious leaders plus a nationwide radio commercial campaign to bring enough public pressure to give them the extra votes they need.

At the moment, however, no senator who opposed the amendment a year ago has announced plans to vote for it this year.

Uncle Sam Is Rich in Property

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government carries a choice chunk of property on its books at a token $1,000—the 18-acre White House grounds.

Yet, even with that example of recording some realty at a fraction of its true worth, a congressional report figures the value of federal property throughout the world at $435.6 billion.

The House Government Operations Committee today released a 347-page study putting the rise in U.S. property value at $35.87 billion in just two years. The committee's first report issued in 1955 listed a total of $208 billion.

The committee said its current report generally listed so-called personality and purchased realty at acquisition cost. "In many instances, federal realty which is very valuable is recorded on the books of the federal government—and reflected in the report—at a mere fraction of its true worth," the committee said, citing the recording of the White House grounds as an example.

The committee said several "personality assets of the federal government are listed on its inventory records at 'no value' inasmuch as some such items were donated to the federal government at no cost and in many instances it is impossible to place a realistic value" on them because of patriotic or sentimental importance.

The committee cited the Hope diamond with a value up to $2 million but not included in the inventory "because it was obtained at no cost to the government."

The study reports the U.S. government's empire of owned land at 761.8 million acres, virtually all of it in the United States.

Sub Proton Particle Found

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) —

Scientists working with a two-mile-long atom smasher suspect they have discovered particles even finer than protons or neutrons, the smallest known components of an atom. They call the particles "partons."

The announcement was made Tuesday by a team of scientists at the Stanford Linear Accelerator Center.

Dr. Wolfgang K. H. Panofsky, director of the center, and Dr. Henry W. Kendall of Massachusetts Institute of Technology also reported the results in the June issue of Scientific American magazine.

It has been thought that protons and neutrons, which form the core of an atom's nucleus, could not be divided.

But bombardment of these particles by streams of electrons of up to 21 billion electron volts has suggested that both protons and neutrons have internal structural parts, called "partons," Panofsky said.

"Knowledge of the internal structures of the protons and neutrons may provide the key to understanding the strong force that holds the atomic nucleus together and endows the universe with its stability," he said.

Bombardment of the nuclear cores, 100,000 times smaller than an atom, was done with streams of electrons traveling almost as fast as light, 186,000 miles per second, through the Stanford accelerator.

The scientists say the electrons penetrated the protons and neutrons and bumped back in a scattered manner.

It was found that the scattering of electrons in many cases was "inelastic," meaning that energy was lost during the collisions, Panofsky said. This suggests that the electrons were bumped back from more than one hard core of a proton or neutron, which would be the parton, he explained.

If further research confirms the existence of partons, it would help to explain the strange irregularities which have been observed previously in subnuclear particles, Panofsky said. Until now the irregularities have been referred to as hypothetical "quarks" or "aces."

attend "because I think it would be prejudicial."

Whiteaker said Tuesday he had booked into Sutter County jail Juan Cervantes Masqueda, 50, as a material witness in the case, but he declined to say how Masqueda is involved. Masqueda was arrested Monday evening in Stockton, he said.

The 25th victim was unearthed Friday. Whiteaker said the search for graves may resume if aerial surveys of the orchards, made with "classified electronic equipment" on jets from Miramar Naval Air Station, turn up more potential grave sites.

Dec. 31 Withdrawal Would Free POWs, Clifford Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Defense Secretary Clark Clifford says American prisoners of war could be home within a month if the United States would set a Dec. 31 deadline on its military involvement in Indochina.

In addition, he said Tuesday, emotion-tinged address Tuesday night to several hundred anti-war lobbyists who are working hurriedly this week in behalf of proposals in both House and Senate to cut off U.S. funds for the war Dec. 31.

Clifford would not specify his sources, saying only the information was drawn from private discussions with "both Americans and non-Americans."

The thrust of Clifford's statement was echoed somewhat by Rep. Robert L. Leggett, who said Viet Cong negotiators in Paris had promised him that if a withdrawal date were set, American prisoners would be freed "before that date."

No Change
Leggett, D-Calif., said the North Vietnamese, however, had expressed to him no change from their formal position that a deadline for total pullout would begin "discussion" of prisoner release.

Leggett said he would urge President Nixon to have U.S. negotiators get confirmation of the position change, and then press the date. He recommended Christmas.

A State Department spokesman told newsmen Hanoi and the Viet Cong had denied last month similar reports on a shift in their positions. At the White House, presidential press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler commented: "Anything they or the other side has to say they could say directly to us."

Any Plan
Ziegler said Nixon would consider any plan for complete withdrawal by Dec. 31 as pre-cipitous and unacceptable, regardless of the prisoner's issue.

Asked about withdrawal nine months hence, Ziegler replied: "I'm not prepared to discuss some of our money without that."

Clifford's remarks came in an likely would precipitate more meaningful negotiations between North and South Vietnam, and, "I believe peace would be the result."

"Five years ago," said Clifford, "I accepted our Vietnam policy. I have no sense of embarrassment. If you find that you are wrong, is there any sense in continuing on a wrong course? I didn't understand before. Now, I do understand."

"And now I have an obsession. That obsession is to get America out of Indochina and stay out."

Lobby of Americans
Clifford was joined in addressing the Lobby of Americans, a coalition of professional, legal, union, church and other organizations, by O'Neill, former ambassador to Japan, Edwin O. Reischauer, and Jerry Wurf, president of the 520,000-member American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees.

Earlier in the day, Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaskan told several hundred antiwar lawyers on the Capitol steps that Monday's secret Senate session over U.S. enterprises in Laos disclosed "a new war at the doorstep of China."

"If the American people knew the details," he said, "they would marvel at the restraint of the leadership of China."

Clifford said U.S. withdrawal needed 215 for a June 23 showdown on a fund-cut-off amendment by Reps. Lucien Nedzi, D-Mich., and Charles Whalen, R-Ill.

General Safeguards
Clifford, who served as secretary of defense in 1968, said the proposed deadline could carry safeguards for both sides.

"If our prisoners are not returned within 30 days from date of announcement of the agreement, then our obligation to withdraw is terminated," he said. "If Hanoi and the NLF return our prisoners, then the other side has the assurance that the enormous pressure of domestic and world opinion would guarantee our complete removal by the terminal date."

Machete Victims Eulogized as Workers, Not Bums

By KEITH HEARN
Associated Press Writer
YUBA CITY, Calif. (AP) —

"They were workers, they were not bums," a skid row mission superintendent said of the 25 drifters found stabbed and hacked to death then buried in orchard graves just outside of town.

"I knew quite a few of these men," the Rev. C. W. Renwick added at a half-hour memorial service for the mass murder victims Tuesday at sundown. "They came into our mission to shave, shower and put on clean clothes to get to work."

"They would resent being called bums. They weren't discouraged and they loved life."

About 200 residents of this agricultural community and adjacent Marysville sat on the wooden bleachers of the high school football field for the services sponsored by the cities' ministerial associations.

Corona Home
The field is about a half-mile from the home of Juan V. Corona, a 37-year-old farm labor contractor who has pleaded innocent to charges of slaying 10 of the men.

"One of the lessons we can learn is we can do more for those who are left behind in this kind of situation," the Rev. Mr. Renwick said of the dozens of other transients and migrant field workers.

His thoughts were echoed by the Rev. Howard Alexander, pastor of Marysville's First Baptist church: "We are our brother's keeper. We should be more aware and more concerned for these men who pass through our community."

Made Contribution
"This is evidenced by the size of the gathering here," he told the 200. Yuba City and Marysville have a total of about 25,000 residents.

"Most of these men are faceless and nameless to us here," he said. "But they contributed to the community's wealth. They were not guests in your home or at your table, but they are guests just the same."

"May we as a community accept part of the guilt for lacking in love and compassion" for the victims and their fellow transients, said the Rev. Charles Elliott of Queens Avenue Community church.

"We do not come here this evening to lash ourselves for what has happened," said the Rev. Edgar Nelson, pastor of First United Methodist church of Marysville, "but we are embarrassed. We share in the guilt."

One elderly woman in the bleachers, her scarf blowing in a light breeze, wiped tears from her eyes with a handkerchief.

Eight uniformed Boy Scouts passed out blue printed memorial service programs which listed the names of the 16 identified victims.

Crash at Hurley Kills Six Persons

HURLEY, Wis. (AP) — Six persons, including one from Virginia and four from Michigan, died at the crest of a hill near this northern Wisconsin town Tuesday evening. Iron County authorities said they may never know the cause.

A panel truck and a station wagon collided head-on about 10 miles west of Hurley on a straight, clear section of pavement. There were no survivors and no witnesses.

A deputy sheriff said some officers speculated that one of the drivers might have been blinded by the evening sunlight.

Dead in the panel truck, headed home after making a delivery of pizza to Hurley, were David L. Pearson, 39, of rural Washburn and John Gordon Schley, 20, of Falls Church, Va., a student at Northland College in Ashland.

Pearson's home was destroyed by fire a week ago.

Dead in the station wagon were the driver, Mrs. Edward Auvinen, 37, of rural Ironwood, Mich.; her father Arvo Pollari, 60, of rural Bessemer, Mich.; Michael A. Conard, 16, Ironwood, and Mrs. Auvinen's daughter, Brenda Marie Auvinen, 17.

Officials said Pollari was being returned home from a hospital in Duluth, Minn.

Controversial Pension Plan to be Restudied

Municipal Employees Back at Work in New York City

NEW YORK (AP) — Striking municipal employees returned to work today after city and union leaders agreed to a proposal for ending the two-day walkout that throttled traffic Monday and spread to sewage treatment plants, incinerators, parks, beaches and even school lunch deliveries Tuesday.

Key to the four-point proposal by the city's office of collective bargaining was that the union's controversial pension plan would be resubmitted to the state legislature next year. Failure of the 1971 Legislature to act on the plan triggered the walkout.

The agreement announced Tuesday night also provided that if the 1972 Legislature, which will have the same political composition as this year's, fails to approve the plan, the issue will be renegotiated by the city and the union.

With the pact, District Council 37 of the AFL-CIO American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees immediately ordered its 7,000 strikers back to work. Local 237 of the Teamsters Union, independent, had ordered 318 striking bridge-tenders back to work earlier.

7,000 Strikers
At a City Hall news conference, Mayor John V. Lindsay said, "In my judgment, it's a sensible, rational, orderly procedure for the next couple of years." He said the city would push for acceptance of the plan next year when time has cooled temperatures."

Lindsay also said that three investigations were under way into possible sabotage at several of the 25 drawbridges that were locked in an open position when the surprise strike began at the start of the Monday morning rush hour.

Bridges Closed
All 25 of the bridges had been closed by city supervisory employees working with technical advisers from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and were reopened to traffic when the settlement came.

Victor Gotbaum, executive director of District Council 37, Manhattan Supreme Court justice Harold Baer granted a preliminary injunction ordering the workers back to their jobs.

Trapping Earth's Heat as Source Of Power Deemed a Workable Idea

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Atomic Energy Commission has termed technically feasible a new concept for generating electricity by using nuclear explosives to blast trapped heat from the bowels of the earth.

A series of atomic blasts would release the heat which would convert piped-in water to steam. The steam would fuel a turbine generator to produce electricity in an above-ground power plant.

The commission envisioned such futuristic power plants in disclosing results Tuesday of a feasibility study prepared by AEC and industrial scientists.

Although technologically within reach, the report said, it is too early to say whether the "hot-rocks" idea would be economically competitive with other methods of generating electricity.

But various versions of the basic concept look promising on that score, the scientists said, especially one in which the surface power plant would be mobile, possibly resting on a riverway or ocean barge.

Thus, the plant could be moved to a safe distance away from the explosion and then returned to business after the subterranean "fires" were loosed again.

Other concepts for 200-million-watt power plants—each serving the needs of about 200,000 people and having an operating lifetime of about 30 years—include:

—One wherein all the nuclear blasts necessary for the plant's lifetime would be touched off before the power plant was built.

—An especially fortified plant, underneath which nuclear explosions would be fired every 10 years.

But the mobile plant, the AEC indicated, would allow blasting anytime the plant's operators thought necessary.

"This study shows," a commission summary said, "that there is no technical reason why electricity cannot be produced from geothermal heat sources with the aid of nuclear explosives."

It said numerous sources of "hot rock" are expected west of the Continental Divide, "but the prospecting techniques for finding such locations have not yet been fully developed."

The study—part of the AEC's "plowshare" program for exploring peaceful uses of nuclear explosives — was prepared by Electric Corp. and Lawrence Livermore Laboratory, Livermore, Calif.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The bying on behalf of foreign nations trying to share in the lucrative U.S. market, say the ultimate goal is assuring consumers plenty of reasonably priced sugar, a goal that is being met.

But opponents within the committee expect to fight when the measure is due to reach the House floor for action.

Voice of Consumer

The committee approved the extension legislation last week 30 to 3. A prime opponent, Rep. John G. Dow, D-N.Y., said the sugar act gives producers, processors, manufacturers and importers an equitable share. But "the voice of the consumer is barely heard in the land of sugar."

Rep. Wiley Mayne, R-Iowa, another dissenter on the committee, charged the extension "will continue and aggravate a system which forces American consumers to pay high subsidies to foreign sugar producers under a quota system."

"It is unfair to the American housewife by requiring her to buy foreign sugar at a premium of three-cents-per-pound over the world market price, and unfair to the American producer by giving the same price he receives to foreign competitors whose labor and other costs are vastly lower," he added.

African Quota

Dow is expected to strike the quota for South Africa, which would be maintained at 60,000 tons a year under the extension bill, because of that nation's apartheid racial system. He also may try to set a payment limit for domestic producers.

In addition, Dow opposes a controversial move obviously aimed at Peru and Ecuador, which have seized American property in recent years.

The committee wrote a plan into the legislation giving the President power to suspend all or part of a quota to nations expropriating American citizens' property and would let him impose a $20-per-ton tax on imported sugar from such countries—with money going to Americans who lost property without compensation.

Latin America

Interest is especially intense in Latin America, with hundreds of millions of dollars at stake. The committee called for a 10-per-cent cut in the quotas for Mexico, the Dominican Republic, Brazil and Peru as well as the Philippines—the so-called Big Five shipping sugar to the United States.

In the case of the Latin American quartet, the quota slashes would mean an annual loss of about $6 million for each.

The measure grants new quotas to Malawi, Uganda and Paraguay, and deals increases to Argentina, Panama, Venezuela, British Honduras, Bolivia, Honduras, Bahamas, Martinique, Malagasy Republic, Swaziland and Colombia.

Meantime, the changes revise domestic allocations to shift 300,000 tons from the Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico to the Florida and Louisiana sugar cane industry.

In all, domestic allocations cover 7.05 million tons of the 11.2 million-ton annual U.S. consumption, thus maintaining the existing relationship at 62 per cent domestic and 38 per cent foreign sugar.

Tariff collections in each of the three years involved in the extension would range from $65 million to $61 million, excise tax collections between $113 million to $116 million, and conditional payments to producers of sugar crops from $90 million to $94 million.

Plague in Everglades

LAKE APOPKA, Fla. (AP) — A mysterious wildlife plague is spreading through some of central Florida's fresh waters, killing thousands of fish and dozens of birds. Sixteen alligators also have died.

For the first time Tuesday, game wardens reported finding the bodies of egrets, crows and seagulls as well as extensive shad and catfish kills.

Officials said the path of wildlife destruction which began a month ago was edging northward from Lake Apopka through about seven miles of algae-choked canals to Lake Dora.

Game and Fresh Water Fish Commissioner Dr. Earle Frye said he is sending a team of biologists to Lake Apopka—which straddles the Lake-Orange County line—for intensive emergency studies.

"We're concerned the die-off has now extended to other species of wildlife," said Frye.

"We've considered closing the lake to fishing and are prepared to do so if your monitoring system reveals any danger to human welfare."

At first biologists thought the die-off was attributable to alligators eating dead and rotting fish. Then a DDT theory was pursued but scientists found more pesticide in live and apparently healthy gators than in the dead ones.

A commission study revealed a DDT count in live gators of 10 times the safety level recommended by the Food and Drug Administration.

Minneapolis Mayor Gains Re-Election

Stenvig defeated Democratic Farmer-Labor challenger Harry Davis, the black president of the Minneapolis Urban Coalition. Stenvig is on leave as a police detective.

Pirating of Tapes Hurts Business

WASHINGTON (AP) — The makers of musical tapes are singing the blues over an estimated yearly loss of $150 million to "pirates" who duplicate their top hits.

Recording industry spokesmen told Congress today the unauthorized duplication presently unhampered by federal laws, is siphoning more than a quarter of their tape sales and rapidly scuttling the $428-million business.

They asked a House judiciary subcommittee to approve a bill, already approved in the Senate, extending copyright protection to tapes and phonograph records.

Duplicated tapes and catalogues of hundreds of titles offered by the pirates, including hits by The Beatles, Bobby Dylan, The Jefferson Airplane and other top performers were shown to the subcommittee.

The pirated tapes generally sell for about half the $6.95 retail cost of the legitimate product, said Jack Grossman, president of the National Association of Record Merchandizers in prepared testimony.

Besides the financial loss suffered by the artists, manufacturers and dealers at the hands of the pirates, he said, the reputation of the performers is frequently damaged by the poor quality of the duplicated tapes.

Stanley M. Gortikov, director of the Recording Industry Association, said the legitimate record companies lose money on most of the titles they release, relying on a few hits to make their profits.

"The tape pirate duplicates and releases only the hits—the hits of others," he said.

"To create almost any album, a record company will expend no less than $55,000. The Pirate can go into business for as little as $500."

Opposing the large numbers of witnesses favoring the copyright extension were attorneys for three tape manufacturer firms who said they pay royalties on the material they duplicate.

"The proposed legislation," said a brief prepared by the Washington law firm, Rowley and Scott, "will not force from the market place the nonroyalty paying pirate. It's passage will only increase monopoly power, drive legitimate 'pirates' out of the market, and ultimately increase the cost of taped music to the consumers."

Witnesses for the copyright extension also said state laws generally were inadequate. However, Tennessee recently enacted a law making pirating of tapes and records a felony. The law's sponsors said it could save the music industry in Nashville alone up to $10 million a year.

Panel Again Opposes License for Tavern

The fifth refusal of a tavern The quonset is at 1513 E. Cass first time it was refused be- cause of police objections to the character of the proposed oper- ator, whom the present appli- cant's replaced in succeeding applications, Goehler argued.

Michael V. Goehler, Jr., and John J. Vogl, Jr., appeared Tuesday before the committee to renew their quest for a license to open Mike & John's Tavern in a quonset building once used as a church. Goehler was chief spokesman for the partners.

Each produced papers signed by residents of the area, includ- ing at least some who apparent- ly signed both papers, but to see if it would be granted "so they don't stick a lot of money in a place and then have it denied" a license

Goehler told the committee that he had oral assurance by telephone that the building is about to pass plumbing inspec- tion. The final work on lavato- ries is being done, he said.

The committee voted without dissent to reject the application, on Thompson's motion giving council receives the recommen- dation next week.

Neenah Mayor Seeks Zones For High-Rise Apartments

NEENAH — Mayor Roman V. Hauser has asked for a study of city zoning codes so high-rise apartment buildings can be constructed in other than the downtown business district.

The plan commission, at Hauser's urging, Tuesday referred the issue to the Fox Valley Council of Governments (COG) to study ways of changing the city's zoning code to allow the high rise structures.

Today Hauser said he has had some inquiries concerning the construction of high rise apartments in the city, but according to the city's present zoning code, buildings above three stories (45 feet) are only allowed in the C-4 (commercial) areas.

"What we need is another zoning classification which would allow the high-rise buildings," Hauser said.

In the downtown area, build- ings up to 150 feet or 12 stories are allowed, but beyond that area, the structures can't go any higher than three stories.

Science Alone Can't Avert Food Crisis, Expert Warns

By LARRY KURTZ
Associated Press Writer
EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Man is hurting into a hunger crisis that science alone cannot stop, warns a food expert who sees salvation only in international cooperation.

"We are living in a dream world," said Dr. Georg Borgstrom, professor of food science, nutrition and geography at Michigan State University. "The average person stands in awe of technology," he said in an interview. "People forget about reality. They don't listen to what they don't want to hear."

The reality is, he said, that earth's resources are dwindling rapidly and no scientific trickery can meet the food demands of an ever-spiraling population.

Borgstrom, a 58-year-old native of Sweden who became a U.S. citizen in 1960, has written widely on world food problems.

Future of Famine
Unless nations get together and plan the use of remaining resources, Borgstrom foresees a future of famine.

Earth's present population is some 3.7 billion. This is expected to leap to seven billion by the year 2,000.

He says it will take 30 million to 40 million acres of new farm land each year "just to keep the world's people at their current malnourished level."

To improve nutrition, he says, we will need a doubling of food production by 1980 and a quadrupling by 2000.

By his calculations, two-thirds of the population eats inadequately. He lists the fortunate few as most inhabitants of North America; Europe including Scandinavia; Russia; Australia; New Zealand; and parts of Argentina.

Reuse Wastes
Borgstrom, who speaks with the accents of his native land, proposes concentration on international food planning, population control and reuse of wastes.

A worldwide nutritional council, he claims, would do more for peace than disarmament talks.

Borgstrom suggests the nations of the world start by declaring the oceans "the common property of man" and coordinating development of the ocean's resources.

Within five years, Borgstrom says, such a test would give the nations an idea of what they might be able to do in a broader approach to the food crisis.

"The globe is finite," he adds. "Already one-third of the land area is tilled or in pasture. Geographers and soil experts agree that most good soil already is in use."

Resourceful History
"We've been very resourceful," he says, "but we haven't paid much attention to what's happening to our resources."

While he says there is much technology can do, there is no single remedy and "each sweeping panacea poses its own problems."

For example, some say we can turn arid deserts into lush farmland through irrigation.

Borgstrom poses these problems: What will you do with the salt left from evaporation? How will you protect the groundwater from contamination? What will you do to keep particles from filling the pores of the soil, creating hardpan and useless marshland?

Another popular idea is to create fish farms in the seas, grinding the harvest into tons of protein flour to feed the world's hungry.

Several Difficulties
Borgstrom sees several difficulties here—primarily the problems of providing enough oxygen to nourish massive fish populations in a concentrated area and protect against disease. From an economic standpoint, he says fish may well cost more to raise as protein sources than do poultry or hogs. Furthermore, he adds that the total catch of food fish in the oceans does not provide the human family much more protein than Americans now get through meat animals.

Man, he says, is faced basically with shortages of water and protein—problems best solved by wise use of present supplies rather than a search for startling new sources.

Protein, a basic substance of living cells, is a favorite topic of Borgstrom's.

Borgstrom contends much of the world's history has been a struggle to secure the protein base—that the Western world has prospered largely because of what he calls its "protein imperialism."

His charts show vast quantities of protein flowing from the general areas of poor nations to the well-fed, in such forms as fishmeal and oilseeds from South America and Africa. This raw protein is used as the base for producing the meats and poultry that grace modern menus.

Man cannot create sufficient protein in chemical industries, but must obtain it from the plants and animals he eats.

Borgstrom says if the world's fish supply vanished suddenly and nations had to depend upon agriculture to replace the protein, many would find the task impossible. There would not be enough land.

"Europe," he says, "is the great protein parasite. The prairies of North America have remained its big supporting colony. It receives the lion's share of U.S. exports of soybeans and feed grains."

Japanese Example
Borgstrom notes that Japan often is cited as a country which feeds a large population on a small land area. However, he says this is misleading because Japan relies heavily on protein from elsewhere.

With population increasing faster in the poorer countries, he asks: "Do we really expect that one-third of the people will always be allowed to eat two-thirds of the food?"

Without destroying the market place, Borgstrom advocates planning of international trade to avoid waste and make the best possible use of available protein resources.

For instance, he says: "Why should Nigeria sell peanut meal to England? Perhaps there's a better way to use this resource within the realm of economic feasibility, than to have it come back as milk through English relief programs.

He is critical of the current market place, contending it results in "absurdities" such as Europe being a net importer of protein and yet creating a butter surplus while the nations that provide the protein go hungry.

He also says Japan gets more protein than the massive populations of China and India.

Protein Treaties
Borgstrom suggests the nations make "protein treaties" to better adjust the food balance and promote economic development.

In his call for international cooperation, Borgstrom emphasizes his feeling that specialization should be submerged in a broad strategy where scientists work together.

A danger in overspecialization, he says, is that engineers can concentrate on delivering water for permanent irrigation without realizing the salt accumulation that may show up years later. He cites salt-clogged soils of California's Imperial Valley as an example.

Borgstrom himself is educated in several disciplines, including plant physiology, limnology and genetics.

Basic Idea

"It is foolish," he says, "for one man to think he has a plan to save the world. However, it is possible to have a notion of what we ought to be doing."

"Our present piecemeal approach is disastrous," he says. "We need coordination of nutrition and agriculture."

"I would not spend $1 million to increase production," he says, "without a rule that the same amount would go into food research and another $1 million into population control."

HHH Party Tells Where Democratic Money Is Being Held in Reserve Until Humphrey Indicates Whether He'll be Candidate

BY ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — As 200 guests in tuxedos and evening dresses sat down to dinner in Washington's expensive Madison Hotel May 26 for Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey's 60th birthday party, one of them looked about, gasped and expertly estimated: "There's half a billion dollars here."

Indeed, the 100 friends of Humphrey and their wives from throughout the country on the select invitation list included surprisingly few politicians, labor union chiefs, and farm leaders. The emphasis was on money men who have contributed heavily to past Humphrey campaigns and would be expected to contribute heavily to another Humphrey try for President in 1972.

Therein lies Humphrey's magnificent political asset today — an asset that is an increasingly serious liability for front-running Sen. Edmund Muskie.

But mainly, these were the left substantially denied bert's millionaires. Young Officer May Have Joined Wife In Swedish Refuge WASHINGTON (AP) — A young West Point graduate ordered to Vietnam is missing from his unit in Germany, the Army says, and may have fled to Sweden.

The Army said 1st Lt. John R. Vequist, 24, of Pittsburg, Kan., has been absent without leave since May 20. Pentagon sources said the Army believes he may be with his wife in Sweden where an estimated 245 other American servicemen have sought refuge.

Vequist, who graduated in 1969, automatically will be classified as a deserter if he is missing more than 30 days.

Army spokesmen said they could not recall a case involving the desertion of a West Point graduate since the beginning of the Vietnam war.

A few years ago another West Point officer, also under orders for Vietnam, went AWOL from his post in the United States but turned himself in a few days later.

Father Surprised

Vequist's father said in a telephone interview from his Pittsburg, Kan., home he was surprised to be notified about five days ago by the Army of his son's disappearance.

"Until I understand more about it, I'd rather not comment," said the father, David G. Vequist.

When he dropped from sight, Vequist was assigned to headquarters, 94th Artillery at Kaiserslautern, Germany. The Army said he received orders March 30 directing him "to depart for Vietnam not later than October 31."

A spokesman said the Army had no information to indicate that Vequist was opposed to the Vietnam war.

Following graduation from West Point where he finished 232 out of a class of 800, Vequist attended the Army Air Defense School at Ft. Bliss, Tex. He went to Germany in December 1969.

The Army desertion rate has soared during the Vietnam war, doubling over the past four years from about 27,000 in 1967 to nearly 66,000 last year.

'Unwanted' Public Works Bill Passes Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has passed a $5.5-billion public works bill facing a possible veto and containing elements of a possible presidential campaign issue next year.

The conference committee measure was sent to the House on a 45-33 vote Tuesday, despite Republican warnings it clashes head-on with President Nixon's revenue-sharing program and invites a veto.

Drawing strongest objections were the $2 billion to provide jobs in high unemployment areas and help build public works projects in depressed years.

The House expanded the legislation, tacking on the accelerated public works program. In conference the Democratic majority accepted the House version.

Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., called it "imprudent, pork-barrel legislation" costing $20,000 for each job created.

"This would build courthouses and city halls all over the country," Baker said, "but it will not concentrate the aid in the really needy areas which are crying for help."

Baker praised the Appalachian Regional Development programs but said they were being "held hostage to unwise legislative maneuvers."

Sen. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., co-author of the original Appalachian bill with Sen. Jennings Randolph, D-W.Va., said the House version should be stripped of its new public works section.

But Randolph, the bill's floor manager, "presents a well-balanced approach to problems of unemployment throughout the whole nation."

The 3-state Appalachian region would get $325 million for highways, $5 million for cleaning up junked cars and applying

Chile Faces Major Crisis After Assassination

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Chile's left-wing government was plunged into a major crisis today following the assassination of a former vice president and outspoken antileftist.

Edmundo Perez Zujovic, who as interior minister was No. 2 man in President Eduardo Frei's Christian Democratic administration, was ambushed Tuesday by three young men who police said were believed to be members of an ultraleft extremist organization, the Organized Vanguard of the People.

President Salvador Allende, a Marxist, declared in a broadcast that the assassination was "a deliberate provocation intended to alter the institutional life of the country."

The right-wing National party said the killing was "the culmination of a series of attacks by armed Marxists whose actions have been tolerated by the government." The Christian Democrats called on the government to wipe out such groups.

Allende declared a state of emergency in Santiago Province, ordered a 1 a.m. to 6 a.m. curfew and suspended some constitutional rights.

Thousands of police and troops with the power to search and make arrests without warrants launched a dragnet for the killers. Police set up roadblocks on all roads leading out of Santiago and ordered all private planes grounded.

The Christian Democrats demanded that army intelligence instead of the police handle the investigation. The party said it had no confidence in the detective force, which is now headed by a militant Socialist. It also charged that Zujovic had been the target of "a daily slander campaign conducted by radios and newspapers that support the government."

Zujovic, a self-made man who made a fortune in the construction business, controlled the police as interior minister and used them without hesitation against leftist demonstrations and other activities. The left called him the "hard-handed one" and blamed him for the deaths of nine persons in March 1969, when police fired on demonstrating squatters in the southern city of Puerto Montt.

Police said one of the men sought for Zujovic's murder was Ronald Rivera Calderon, 25-year-old member of the Organized Vanguard. The police said he is also wanted for the killing of a policeman two weeks ago in an attack on a bank truck, and ballistics tests indicated the submachine gun that killed Zujovic was the same one that was taken from the slain policeman.

It was the second assassination here in eight months. Gen. Rene Schneider, Chile's army commander, was killed in an ambush on Oct. 22, just before a special congressional election confirmed Allende as president.

That killing was blamed on ultrarightists trying to provoke a military coup that would prevent Allende from taking office.

Navy Redesigning Its Uniforms

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Bell next week its most sweeping bottom trousers may be in for a uniform change in history.

The newspaper said the traditional dress of the Navy enlisted on their way out, along with the traditional round white hats and dress jumpers.

The Norfolk Virginia-Pilot reported today that it had learned from the Navy's Atlantic Fleet headquarters here that the Navy will officially announce be similar to those now worn by chief petty officers, the newspaper said.

It quoted a spokesman for the fleet as saying rank will be indicated by cap devices and insignia on shirts and coats.

The newspaper said it was told the Navy also plans to do away with service dress khakis for officers and chiefs and service dress whites for chiefs.

New York City, Albany Institute Opposing Probes

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor John V. Lindsay has set up a commission to study the efficiency of the state government, and to examine the question of the city's becoming the 51st state. At the same time, the state legislature has passed a bill creating a commission to probe the city's operation.

Creation of both commissions, Tuesday night climaxed weeks of acrimony between the city and state governments over the city's request for new revenues and appeared to support a growing campaign among some city leaders for statehood.

Lindsay said the announcement of a commission "to inquire into the effectiveness and efficiency of the state government" came "after nearly two months of preliminary preparations."

In Albany, the Republican leadership surprised the legislators by suddenly taking up the bill providing for a state investigation of the city.

"We're worried about a city," said Senate Majority Leader Earl W. Brydges of Niagara Falls. "We're watching the gradual deterioration of what was once the greatest city in the world."

With Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller in command of Republican majorities in the state Senate and Assembly, the measure was passed over the protests of city Democrats.

Brydges said the state commission could consider the possibility of replacing the strong mayor form of government with a city manager system and dividing the city into five separate governments along borough lines.

Enemy Aims Assault at Phnom Penh

PHNOM PENH (AP) — A Communist division made new assaults today on U.S.-trained Cambodian forces guarding eastern approaches to Phnom Penh. The Cambodian soldiers said it was the most intense fighting they had ever encountered.

Inadequate

Democrats said the $250,000 appropriation for the commission would be inadequate for it to do any serious work, and Sen. Seymour Thaler of Queens called the action an attempt to "intimidate" Lindsay.

Lindsay and Rockefeller, strong political rivals, have engaged in name-calling recently over the size of the state and city budgets. The mayor accused Rockefeller of short-changing the cities and the Hand-to-hand fighting raged Tuesday afternoon at Prey Thom, 12 miles northeast of the capital.

The legislature also voted Tuesday night, after weeks of wrangling, to allow the city to impose $525 million in new taxes. The package was enlarged with a state guarantee of $100 million more in federal aid to the city.

The compromise package includes increased income taxes for city residents and commuters. Lindsay had asked for $896 million in new taxes to balance his $9.1 billion proposed city budget.

Trees Doing Poorly on North Side

Trees planted by the North-side Advancement Association along Wisconsin Avenue have not grown well. According to Dr. Victor Stracke, a spokesman for the organization that last fall undertook the beautification project, "many look brown, dried and apparently their roots haven't taken."

A preliminary check on the soil in which some of the trees were planted indicates a high concentration of salt, however, the organization is having further tests made. Stracke said he thinks salt, an unusually cold and snowy winter and a dry period in early spring may be the cause. Originally 60 evergreens were planted between Oneida and Richmond streets. The merchants' group hopes to continue beautification plans farther down the avenue and along Richmond Street, as soon as the growing problem is resolved.

BY CAROL HANSON
Post-Crescent Home Furnishings Editor

For anyone who loves the feel of beautiful wood and delights in seeing the results of superb craftsmanship visiting the showrooms of some of this nation's finest furniture makers to see their latest offerings has to be the high point of any trip to a national home furnishings market. During a visit last October to North Carolina, I was invited to attend a press showing at the Tomlinson factory showroom. Not only was I intrigued by the beautiful statement the company makes in traditional but I was also impressed by the concern each employee showed for the products that had been chosen as the latest additions.

Now being added to the line is another offering that was created by a young California designer, Hasi Hester, who has managed to translate the spirit of Chippendale and other 18th century designs into today's function and proportions.

Chippendale — the acknowledged master of English furniture design — listened to a "wind out of Asia" during the 1750s when Oriental delight in fretwork and surface ornamentation ignited his imagination. He saw in them freedom from the heaviness of the Georgian period and an opportunity for light and sketchy effects. From this recognition he developed fretwork into an art form.

The principle of fretwork is not unlike the applique we have learned from needlework. In furniture, the basic structural wood is overlaid with a second wood in filigree. This idea was used in this collection on such things as the apron of a table and the front of a sideboard. One table top demonstrates this lattice work but in a manner never dreamed up by the renowned Chippendale. The 20th century refinement is lattice work under glass.

During the 18th century, these exquisite patterns were finished in wood stains. Tomlinson has given them a new purity with white-on-white. There are also astringent lacquers — glazed tangerine, lime and lemon — made even more exciting with contrasting stripings.

Also put together with some of this updated Chinese Chippendale was pattern to create a room of real charm similar in manner to a patchwork quilt. The wall is a lively new geometric and super-imposed against it is a Chippendale sofa that is different and yet has a marked kinship. A lilac garden dominates one corner and a floral pattern covers a pair of chairs.

And all of this pattern and color are the hallmarks of the new collection that is a quintessence of design motifs that had their birth in the 18th century.

A Lively Geometric print is the background for this lovely Chinese Chippendale designed by Hasi Hester. Fretwork trims tables and sofa and blends with the patterns. Below, also from the collection are these dining room pieces that reflect the updating of 18th century motifs.

Fretwork Under glass is the name of this design game. Combined with lovely color and backgrounded by pattern, it makes a statement about comfortable living. Below, a "small talk" room where color is warm and welcoming is highlighted by a bold floral on the sofa, green on the floor and lounge chair and rusty-red patterns on the wall. Tables are a dusky-dark tone suggesting the long ago.

Car Advice for Women

Check Tires Carefully Before Taking That Trip

Summer vacations that are well planned are fun and relaxing. Plan this summer so your car is ready to make the trip. Don't limit your car check to just having air put in your tires, says Orrin Berge, extension agriculture engineering specialist at the University of Wisconsin.

Any unusual bulges, cuts or worn tread indicates that you need to replace the tire. Most tires have a tread wear depth indicator across the tread of the tire. When the tread is worn away to that depth, narrow horizontal bare areas appear at several points across the tread of the tire to signal the tread is nearly gone.

Rotating the tires can extend their life by giving even wear. Decide however, just how much extended life you will get from rotating tires. Then, compare the cost of rotating the tires with the cost of a new tire.

From a safety point of view, place the best tires on the front wheels. If a front tire goes flat it's harder to maintain a straight course. But don't drive very far on a poor tire.

Before you start the journey, check the inflation pressure of each tire including the spare. Your car manual will tell you must how much you need for each tire. Many drivers prefer to increase pressure by 2 pounds per tire for less swaying and better control in high speed driving. Be sure that you have the tires checked before you get on the road and before the tires have warmed up with fast driving. You will find that after driving on a highway for several hours that the pressure has increased. This is normal. Don't let any air out.

If you decide that you need new tires, be aware of the different types of tires. Some are said to be belted. These tires have a belt of fiberglass or steel that runs under the tread around the tire's circumference. Most tires have 2-4 piles of cord that run under the tread across the tires diagonally or on the bias. Piles in the radial ply tires run directly across the tire. Usually radial ply tires have a long life, 40,000 miles or more. They should be used only in a complete set or all 4 wheels for better stability on turns.

If you will carry a heavy load in the car consider buying tires one size larger than the usual original equipment. Larger tires have more load capacity, ride better and usually last longer.

After your tires have been completely checked or replaced, have your service man check the wheel alignment and balance of your wheels. These two steps can reduce the wear on your treads.

Proper Care Prolongs Furniture Beauty

There are five final finishes in the wood family: high-gloss, satin-gloss, low-gloss, authentic boiled oil, and paint. For cleaning and polishing, use only those products recommended for furniture and remember to follow the manufacturer's directions, says 4H Home Economist, Carol Evans.

High-gloss finishes need a paste wax or liquid polish. With paste wax, apply a thin coat and buff to a high sheen. Liquid polishes, which require less rubbing, should be poured onto a soft cloth, never directly on the furniture. Use a clean cloth to buff.

Satin-gloss finishes require a clean polish or a cream wax containing no silicone which would increase the gloss. After numerous waxings, the gloss noticeably heightens and it is time to remove the wax completely and start fresh.

Low-gloss finishes should be polished with a low-luster polish or cleaning wax designed to clean and protect the finish without adding luster. However, if more sheen is desired, use a paste wax. Apply sparingly between two layers of cloth so that only a thin layer coats the surface. Wax small areas at a time and buff until wax is hard and dry. Under-buffed wax collects dirt.

Boiled-Oil Finish
Authentic boiled-oil finishes need only occasional washing and cleaning with mineral spirits followed by an application of boiled linseed oil. Use a pad, rub vigorously and wipe away all excess soil. If wax has been applied inadvertently, remove with mineral spirits before putting on an oil coating. To avoid the danger of spontaneous combustion, all pads and cloths used with linseed oil should be thoroughly wet with water and disposed of immediately after use.

Slightly scratched or marred oiled furniture is easily repaired by light sanding with very fine steel wool. Always work in the direction of the grain. Then wash, allow to air dry, wipe with mineral spirits and reoil.

Paint finishes are easy to maintain by washing with suds and water. Use water sparingly, especially around joints, but rinse well. If using wax or liquid polish after washing, select one specifically made for paint finishes.

In addition, there are special topcoatings or "super finishes" that make furniture more resistant to permanent damage from common household spills and stains and excessive heat or cold. But still, accidents should be cleaned up as soon as possible and the same general care applies to these "super finishes."

Plastic Finishes
Laminated plastics are equated with easy-care and resist stains, scuffs and burns remarkably well. Plastics are available in many colors and patterns including wood grains. Found particularly in furniture designed for children's rooms and family rooms as well as kitchen and bath countertops where hard use is expected, routine washing with a sudsy sponge is care enough. A wax or polish may be used to preserve luster. Use a type recommended for plastic; otherwise, streaking may be seen at certain angles. Though tough, plastics are not indestructible and it is wise to protect surfaces from extreme heat and cutting or slicing operations.

Leather surfaces should be washed occasionally, using just the foam of a suds solution and wetting as little as possible. Rinse several times with a clean damp cloth. Then apply fine furniture cream. Avoid silicone polishes, heavy paste wax or liquid wax as cracking may result. If glass tops are used on leather, cushion with felt bumpers on corners to provide for air circulation. Otherwise, just dust with a clean soft untreated cloth. Of course, the leather-look vinyls take to suds-scrubbing with safety. Being non-porous, wetting won't harm the vinyl. Care should be taken not to let water seep into seams or inlaid sections which could loosen the binding.

Marble
Marble may be washed frequently with water. As needed, use a detergent solution worked with a fiber brush to remove residue dirt. Rinse and wipe dry to prevent streaking and spotting. A colorless, light paste wax will protect the surface, but may add a yellowish tone if applied to white marble. If marble becomes dull it can be livened with putty powder, available at hardware stores, rubbed on with a damp cloth. Use a light steady touch. Fruit juices, carbonations or acids should be wiped up with a sudsy sponge instantly because these liquids tend to etch marble.

Good furniture care is mostly common sense — keep coasters handy and clean up accidents right away — combined with the proper polishes for each furniture type and a routine schedule of dusting and cleaning.

Read Instructions

Be sure to read care instructions that accompany any small or major appliance you purchase. After learning how to operate properly, you will also save time by using the right method of cleaning.

125 Years of History Will be Recreated at Delafield in July

DELAFIELD — "One of the best kept hotels in the Territory" was how the Old Milwaukee Sentinel described Hawks Inn shortly after it opened in 1846. Today, 125 years later, it is hailed by historians as "an unsurpassed example of an early Wisconsin stagecoach stop".

To celebrate the 125th Anniversary of the famous inn at Delafield, a gala program of historic pageantry and displays has been planned for July 10-11 by the Hawks Inn Historical Society, including an Art and Crafts Fair, Frontier Parade, Civil War Sham Battle, and Heritage Days Concert and Pageant. According to Mrs. John Wyslasing, president of the society, more than 50 well-known artists and craftsmen from Wisconsin and the Midwest will be displaying their works for two days at the Art and Crafts Fair. All works will be eligible for awards.

Judging them will be Donald V. Bendel, well known Ceramic designer - craftsman,

Mortality Rate of Older Females Is Decreasing

NEW YORK — If you're a woman who has reached her 45th birthday, you can breathe easier now.

A recent study by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company has revealed that mortality among women 45 and older is on the decrease in the United States.

Sharing your good fortune are your over-45 female cousins in Canada and Western Europe. As a matter of fact, fate has smiled even kinder on them, because these lucky women have been enjoying a steadily decreasing incidence of mortality in all age groups, according to the Metropolitan Life survey.

The study points out that, because of its size, population, diversity and degree of industrialization, the United States is more reasonably regarded Directed by Mrs. Elaine Shaw, the Hawks Inn Singers will present their Heritage Days Concert and Pageant at Christ the King Lutheran Church as the final event of the two-day celebration. Their program includes a lilting musical tour of the early days from 1845-1863 when the Inn was in its heyday. The variety of music itself reflects the unabashed sentimentalism of the time, its rollicking spirit, and intensely patriotic fervor while a dramatic narration, combined with costumed tableaux and skits, serves to relate the music to both local and national events of the period.

For more than 10 years, the Hawks Inn Historical Society has worked to raise funds and gradually restore the famous Inn to its original appearance. Rooms of the first floor are completed, and this year for the first time, the bedrooms of the second floor will be open for viewing by the public. Restoration work will continue until all three floors of the Inn are refurbished, and the original kitchen wing has been rebuilt. Tours of the Inn will be conducted by costumed guides each day.

Nelson Paige Hawks was a lover of good living, and his Inn became celebrated for its good food, entertainment and hospitality. Some of his famous guests included Solomon Juneau, Byron Kilbourn and Daniel Wells. His colorful personality helped create the same feeling throughout the village of Delafield. In addition to the Inn, he owned a store, a saw mill and flour mill. He served as Delafield's first postmaster, second justice of the peace and third chairman of the town. Following his death in 1863, the Inn's popularity declined, and it was sold by his heirs in the 1870's.

Tradition Prevails

NEW YORK — A minister who marries many "hippies" observes most still have wedding ceremonies that are "fairly traditional" even though they are rebelling. The Rev. George Hill of Greenwich Village's Washington Square Methodist Church noted that for couples who have been living together "the marriage isn't something you go through and then go to bed together... In a way, it's a more serious decision for them than was the old fashioned way," he said. "They are looking for something that is real."

To Celebrate Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. George Brockman, 3316 E. Wisconsin Ave., will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary Sunday with a family dinner at noon and an Open House from 2 to 4 p.m. at the Darboy Club.

The couple was married June 15, 1921 at Zion Lutheran Church. They are life-long Appleton residents.

Mr. Brockman was employed at the Fox River Paper Co., for 44 years until his retirement in 1963.

The Brockmans have three children; Emory Brockman, Mrs. Melvin Uhlenbrauck and Mrs. Vernon Uhlenbrauck, all of Appleton. They have 10 grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

Sun Parasol Aids Plants

Some flowers show their true colors only when shielded from the sun's hot rays. Without shade, they may wilt and die.

For areas where the shade of trees or larger structures isn't possible, one or more western wood parasols will provide decorative cover and allow air circulation.

Combined with planter boxes and a fence of vertical boards for a backdrop, these seven-to nine-foot ball parasols lend new personality to a garden.

Another pleasant combination is a bench and fence, providing a shady, restful spot.

It's a Case of Poor Manners

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please answer a question that has been bothering me for a long time. I have never seen it discussed anywhere and I have looked through every etiquette book I can find.

When a person is visiting in the home of a friend, and the telephone rings, is it polite for the hostess to leave her guest sitting alone while she goes to another room and talks on the phone for 15 or 20 minutes?

This happened to me yesterday, for the third time (same woman) and I felt as if she was treating me shabbily. When she returned, she made no reference to the fact that she had left me sitting there for a good long while.

Am I wrong to feel this was rude on her part? Or am I overly sensitive? — Grace

Dear Grace: It is extremely poor manners to leave a guest for 15 or 20 minutes unless a dire emergency arises.

Most phone calls can be returned — unless of course the call is from overseas in which case the hostess should explain.

If I were a guest and the hostess disappeared for 20 minutes to talk on the phone, she would find me gone when she returned.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our 16-year-old daughter is going steady with a rather nice young man of 17. He has a habit of coming early for dates — sometimes he shows up as much as 45 minutes before the appointed time.

Lately he has fallen into the habit of going upstairs to Mary's bedroom to visit with her while she dresses, brushes her hair and puts on her makeup. Since he has started to do this he has been showing up earlier and earlier. The stereo is usually on and the door is often closed. My husband and I feel this is improper. When we told Mary this morning that we did not approve she became highly indignant — said we were intimating by our criticism that we did not trust her.

What are your views? — Old Fogies Ages 47 and 45

Dear Fogies: When a boy comes to a girl's home to pick her up for a date, he should not go upstairs to keep her company, or for any other reason.

Tell your daughter to inform the young man to wait downstairs — and if he wants to know why, she can tell him: "Because my folks don't think you belong in my bedroom." Kids can be plenty blunt. I suggest the same for parents.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I read recently where a psychiatrist from Vanderbilt University reported his findings at the Mid-South Medical Convention. A questionnaire revealed that nine out of ten women enjoy being cuddled. I like these odds, but please tell me, what is "cuddling"? What I mean is, how far does "cuddling" go? I am not being precious. I am sincere in my quest for this information. Thank you. — 1911 Model from Dothan, Ala.

Dear Mod: According to the World Book Encyclopedia Dictionary, cuddle means "to hold closely and lovingly in one's arms. To hug tenderly. To fondle or nestle."

As you can see the possibilities are endless. You can go as far as you please. If you happen to get that one out of ten who doesn't enjoy it. She'll let you know.

Too many couples go from matrimony to acrimony. Don't let your marriage flop before it gets started. Send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage — What to Expect." Send your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Public Man's Child Prefers Private Life

BY FRANCES LEWINE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Tricia Nixon was reared in an atmosphere of private schools and Secret Service protection, a public man's child who is at once a campaign asset and a daughter to be shielded from the public.

The Tricia Nixon who marries Ed Cox on Saturday has known politics as a staple of life from the day she was born. She was reared in Washington, the mecca of politics, and she is being married in the White House, America's best-known address.

The daughter of Pat and Richard Nixon was a little girl who joined the church Scout troop, adored a tabby cat named Donna and was adamant about not parting with a big turtle skin pillaged from a Florida beach.

The Nixons tried to keep her out of the bright glare to the point of once refusing to subscribe to a major Washington newspaper. Its biting critical cartoons, they felt, were not fit for their two young daughters eyes.

But for children such as Tricia and her sister Julie, there was no protection from worldly realities.

At six, Tricia stayed up to watch television as her father was nominated for vice president in Chicago. She named the family's black and white cocker spaniel "Checkers" and it became a household word in that 1962 campaign.

Her debut as a politician's daughter was made at the 1960 Republican convention when she was still in her teens.

Sad Day as Teen

She remembers "the saddest day of my life,"—the day her father conceded defeat to John F. Kennedy in that 1960 presidential race. President Nixon recalls that his then 14-year-old daughter cried uncontrollably.

But now, Tricia is 26, blue-eyed, blonde, with a delicate fragile beauty. The years have molded her into a public personality with an overriding sense of privacy.

She is 5-foot-3, weighs only 95 pounds and gives a much younger appearance. She is reserved and speaks with the polite, soft voice of the finishing school.

But her father says "she's proved she has a mind of her own—a very strong personality—holds her own extremely well—but never starts a fight."

She likes history, music, sailing and swimming, though "I'm very unathletic."

Admittedly reserved, Tricia managed in 2½ years in the White House to take part in a minimum of public duties and campaigning, keeping a very private life of her own.

She's enjoyed some of it, however, such as a masked ball, entertaining Prince Charles and Princess Anne of England. And she's taken on such things as Potomac cruises for hospitalized servicemen and sporadically tutoring inner city children.

Father Has Wish

President Nixon's main wish for his older daughter after her White House wedding Saturday to Harvard law student Edward Cox is that she can live a life of her own, out of the "merciless glare of publicity."

She says she'd like to get a job, perhaps as a writer. The closest she's come to it was a summer stint as a receptionist in the office of then Sen. George Murphy, R-Calif., after her junior year at Finch.

"It's difficult to hold a steady job when you're a president's daughter," she says.

The Nixons are a close family, Nixon points out, "because of what we've been through together."

Nixon often recalls how he wasn't on hand when Tricia was born Feb. 21, 1946, in Whittier, California. He was at a Republican luncheon in Los Angeles on his first congressional campaign.

"That's the story of her life," he notes.

Tricia went only briefly to public elementary school, Horace Mann here. Then it was a succession of expensive private schools: Sidwell Friends in Washington, Marlborough School for Girls in Los Angeles, Miss Chaplin's and Finch College, near their Fifth Avenue home in New York.

Tricia got high marks as a history major at Finch, was

After Richard Nixon was elected to the House of Representatives from California, he and his wife Pat and daughter Tricia moved to the nation's capital. In this 1946 photograph released by the White House, the Nixons are shown posing near the Jefferson Memorial. Tricia will be married Saturday to Edward Cox in a Rose Garden ceremony at the White House. (AP Wirephoto)

Georgio Belladonna, famed member of the Italian Blue Team, has continuously generated an enormous amount of interesting material for bridge columnists. Although it is difficult to pay special recognition to any particular one of his amazing feats, today's hand must rank with those considered his best.

To fully appreciate Georgio's ingenuity, see if you can find the sure way to the contract by looking at all four hands.

itself to avoiding the loss of three heart tricks.

The "obvious" method, which most everyone would go for, is to lead to the heart king. If this lost to the ace, then maybe the spade king would be on side. Or, if trumps were not led, it would be possible to ruff a heart in dummy.

Maybe even the heart jack could take a trick. Certainly South would have to be very unlucky for none of these possibilities to materialize.

Let's see. Win the diamond ace and lead a heart to dummy's king. East wins and leads a spade. The finesse loses to West's king and another spade is led. Declarer can no longer make the hand, and if, in desperation, he takes the club finesse, he winds up down two.

Ready for Belladonna's play: He won the diamond ace, crossed to dummy's club ace and led a low heart from dummy! Place the heart honors and the spade king whenever you wish, there is no way to defeat the hand.

If East rises with a heart honor to lead a trump, declarer can easily establish a heart trick, he cannot attack spades (to prevent a ruff) without sacrificing a spade trick.

Georgio worked it all out at the table in about the time it takes to decide a two-way finesse. A true masterpiece.

Fresh Ideas Flourish in Home Decor

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Keeping up with new ideas in home furnishings is a bit difficult even for decorators. Through such organizations as the Resources Council, a trade division of the American Society of Interior Designers, member designers are able to see what is available. If the decorators like what they see, the ideas soon find their way into homes.

Here are some offerings from the recent annual show of the council:

... Boating blues—bright, lively blues worn in casual dress fashions for boating—were shown in cotton and linen, plain and patterned fabrics, for home fashions use.

... Two popular color schemes are evident. One is a combination of pink, white, green—lovely azelia or watermelon pinks and spring greens—in florals, stripes, abstracts or in combinations of all three for wallpapers and fabrics. Less dramatic interpretation is given to red, white and blue, which will make this color scheme more popular in the average home. In a wallpaper it is effectively used in squares of blue with large white dots and horizontal red stripes. In a printed carpet the design was a small all-over geometric.

... A new fabric is a printed celanese. The paper heat transfer method is similar to decal transfer.

... Handsome patterns on vinyl upholstery fabrics include white on a cool green background and a large houndstooth print in black and white.

... Pale apricot painted finishes on furniture is a new trend. Furniture designer John Mascheroni's hand carved wood table was finished in apricot lacquer.

... Foil wall coverings have become an elegant addition to rooms. Newer ones have muted the shine so that the design captures the light with color and texture blending harmoniously as an integral part of the shimmering background.

... The animal trend continues with beige-y monkeys cavorting on a reddish-tone wall covering with correlated fabric designed by Ellen McCluskey.

... And for outdoors, Zehna Brunschwig suggests strawberry-patterned fabrics for the picnic table.

... An exhibit of vinyl floor coverings illustrated the trend toward combinations of vinyl tiles with borders of realistic looking wood strip vinyls to give a custom-design look to floors. Particularly attractive were the four-to-a-square wood-bordered vinyls.

... A new look collection of handmade chandeliers of tin included a big fish with lots of little fish dangling from it and an ascension balloon with a little basket below, designed by youthful John Leone. He fell into the tin man bit by chance, he explained. A party decorator, he was walking through the service entrance of the Plaza Hotel in New York one day when he saw a number of little and big cans lined up for the rubbish collector. He experimented with them, making lamps for his own use. Soon he was fashioning the cans into flower petals with ordinary scissors at first, making little and big flowers, and putting them into shiny tin containers or baskets. He next began the chandelier kick, he says, and it was a display of these that aroused much interest at the show. He likes gold touches with silver so some of the tin is applied with brass.

Here Comes the Bride Topped by Nutpial Cake

The old-fashioned bride probably hated the old-fashioned wedding cake. By custom, it was smashed over her head.

This romantic tradition was observed with the best of intentions, though perhaps dazing a bride's appreciation for ritual.

Eventually smashing gave way to merely eating the wedding cake as it grew into today's tier-upon-tier architectural triumphs, reportedly sometimes too heavy for anything but small bites, let alone lifting.

The sugary frosting plastering the modern wedding cake covers a lively past that goes back to the days of ancient Rome, the National Geographic Society says.

For a Life of Plenty

At first wedding cake was part of the nuptials only of upper class Romans. It was served in a ceremony known as confarreatio, or eating together.

The cake was plain scone-like unleavened bread made of flour, salt, and water. The bride and groom shared eating it, supposedly assuring them a life of plenty in both happiness and children.

What was left of the cake was then broken over the bride's head—history is silent on whether this was the new husband's right—and wedding guests scrambled for pieces of the cake.

Just as at today's wedding receptions, these morsels were prized by the Roman guests not only as a snack, but as a souvenir of luck to take home with them.

For any future children of the newly married couple, the breaking of bread could be critically important. Unless their parents' marriage had been solemnized in this way before at least 10 witnesses, the children could never grow up to become high Roman officials.

Baking marriage bread, or just throwing grains of wheat—rice in the Orient—at the newlyweds, has long symbolized fertility as a part of weddings around the world.

Bride's Biscuits

Among some American Indians, the bride was supposed to bake her unleavened wedding bread herself and then present it to her bride.

At early Anglo-Saxon weddings, guests were provided a huge basket of small, hard biscuits for eating and as ammunition for the bride's head. Leftovers then were distributed among the poor.

Later, guests took to bringing their own cakes to weddings, usually spiced buns, which were stacked into an enormous pile.

If the bride and groom could kiss over the of this heap of buns, it was an omen for life-long happiness. There is no record indicating taller newlyweds lived the happiest ever after.

During the reception, the bride was also crowned with biscuits.

In Charles II's reign, a French chef attending a British wedding decided it would be more logical to ice over the pile of buns. From that frosted mound evolved today's many-tiered wedding cake.

In the 1700's, eating wedding cake supposedly made unmarried wedding guests dream that night of their future mates.

Just as important was an old Bulgarian custom: Bride and groom had a tug of war with the loaf of wedding bread, and whoever broke off the bigger piece was destined to be boss of the household.

Where to Get Quick Help

"Wrrrrr, wrrr, hummmmm mmm, hum, wrrrr, humm mmm."

Imagine the steady, comforting sound of efficiently operating appliances when all of a sudden...

"Clank, plink, ping," and the finalizing, "plunk," interrupts smooth functioning. Unfortunately, malfunctioning also interrupts your work schedule.

To lighten the sometimes bothersome task of getting the appliance fixed, Leslie Paige of the Whirlpool Corporation offers some suggestions.

Most important is to call a reputable, trained service technician. Appliances built today have complex parts that require knowledgeable technicians to fix. In addition, some warranties are invalidated if unqualified persons attempt to fix malfunctioning products.

Always find out if the service technician has been trained on the particular brand appliance requiring service. It's important, too, to ask if he does warranty repair, if the appliance is covered by a warranty.

To find a qualified service technician: Ask your appliance dealer. Many appliance stores do their own servicing or are able to recommend another service organization.

Ask friends. One of the best ways to locate satisfactory service organizations is simply to ask your friends. Be sure the technician is qualified to fix the particular brand appliance you own.

Use the yellow pages. Service organizations are listed by product, i.e., "dishwashing machines—repair," and "Refrigerator and freezer—repair." They may also be listed by brand. The local Better Business Bureau can advise you if you have any questions concerning the company's reputation.

Parents and Children

By Arnold Arnold

Law, Order and Justice For Adults and Children

Read the following to your children and discuss this article with them over your dinner table. The stories are true and my suggestions will provoke a lively and instructive discussion, even if you and your children disagree with me. The incidents happened within my sight and hearing during the past few months, in the course of my covering news stories as background for this feature.

A single police officer on horseback rode down the street on his way to his duty, controlling crowds and traffic at a public parade. A school-bus full of kids passed him. They were also on their way to participate in the day's events. A boy, perhaps no more than 12 years old, leaned out of the bus window and yelled: "Hey, fellahs. Look! First time I seen a pig riding on a horse."

The next incident took place during disorders at a high school. My press pass permits me to cross police lines. While observing what was going on I came across a police officer using obscene and insulting language while he shoved a young spectator across the school-yard. He kept repeating: "O.K. you . . . Get moving you little . . ."

Had I been the police officer on horse-back in the first incident, I would have hauled that boy off the bus, taken him down to police headquarters, called his parents and taken all of them before a judge. Had I been the judge, I would have sentenced this kid to cleaning out the police-station latrines for the next few weekends.

Had I the power — or the guts — I would have hauled the police officer in the second incident before a review board, demanding that he be severely reprimanded, or dismissed if his behavior was habitual. Strong measures? Perhaps. But the unhindered misconduct of each erodes the rule of law. Children should be taught, and should be required to treat with respect, and at the very least not to insult or interfere with, a police officer's performance of his peaceful duty. A policeman must also be required to perform his duty without passion or favor, even if provoked. He's got no business being on the force if he can't do his job professionally.

These suggestions may seem archaic or revolutionary to some readers, depending on their outlook. I suggest that you think about and discuss these incidents and my suggested solutions, and that you re-read this column in its entirety before you become emotional about this subject.

If you are interested in introducing your child to reproductions of genuine documents dealing with our history, sent a large, (No. 10), stamped, self-addressed envelope to me, Arnold Arnold, Dept. W, in care of The Post-Crescent for a free catalog of such reproductions. They make great wall decorations for your child's room. Please mark the outside of your envelope "POSTERS."

WINE On the Table

By William Clifford

Warm weather brings a thirst for drinks to quaff, drinks, for example, made with California's excellent premium wines.

One of our favorites is a generous aperitif that began turning up in French restaurants a few years ago and is now sweeping the country. It's a large glassful of flavored white wine called a Kir, named for the French priest who was a Resistance leader in World War II and became Mayor of Dijon.

Creme de Cassis from France is so fine that it repays the effort to search out. The amount to use is a matter of taste. We like our Kir on the dry side, with only a few drops of Cassis to a large glass of Chablis. Others recommend a tablespoonful.

In Burgundy they sometimes use as much as a quarter or even a third Cassis. But the French have an unaccountable taste for sweet aperitifs.

The Kir also has fallen victim to the current bartenders' syndrome—everything-on-the-rocks with a twist of lemon. You don't have to use ice if you chill the wine. Or lemon peel if the wine has sufficient acid to balance the cordial.

There's a half brother of the Kir that is served with ice: Vermouth Cassis. Vermouth is a stronger wine that can stand dilution.

It makes a smaller drink. Like the wine-growers of Burgundy, we see no need for Vermouth when there's enough good white wine to make a Kir.

Culinary Note: Once you possess a bottle of Creme de Cassis, you don't have to confine its use to aperitifs. It combines wonderfully with ice cream for grownup sundaes. Try it with vanilla (plain or fancy), with raspberry or lemon sherbet, with pistachio ice cream and pound cake.

Wife's Unfinished Jobs Baffle Husband

By JAKE BOOHER
Associated Press Writer
FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) —I fully realized, on getting married three years ago, that Mary and I would have to make adjustments for each other's eccentricities.

But, I thought, who could ask for more in a wife? As a professional home economist, she knows all the old and new tricks of cooking, sewing and running a household. And being very talented with her hands, Mary is excellent with handicrafts, decorations and do-it-herself.

There is one catch. She almost never finishes anything she starts.

We've got unfinished business around our apartment you wouldn't dream of. It's stuffed in closets, stacked in corners, slid under beds, jammed in drawers, laying on tables. It's both hidden away and in plain sight. And it's endless.

Take, for example, the hooked rug that she started making two years before we were married. It's 4 by 6 feet, and is from a pattern she designed herself. When we were married, it was about 8-10ths finished. Now, I estimate it's about 17-20ths finished.

All the time, it's been sitting in the corner in our living room. Kind of a conversation piece.

When friends were visiting the other night, in fact, Priscilla held up the rug to her husband Lee and said, "Look at this beautiful hooked rug Mary is making."

I felt like saying, "It was a lot more beautiful before it collected three years of New York City soot from that window you're standing by."

Then there's the sports coat she decided to make me on my first birthday after our marriage. She bought the fabric to present to me on the big day, along with the promise that a finished coat would follow. That was in 1968, and I haven't seen the fabric since.

She was carving me a wooden roadrunner tie rack as a memento of our days in New Mexico, where we met. It's the state bird there. After doing a superb job on the bird, in 1969, she's never bought the hooks on which to hang the tie.

And so it goes.

She took up oil painting a couple of years ago, and determined last year to paint a picture as a wedding gift for a friend back in New Mexico. I badgered and threatened, and she finally finished it two months ago. But it's still hanging on OUR wall, because she hasn't wrapped it for mailing.

Mary does finish some of her projects, and they turn out beautifully, making me feel blessed indeed to have such a talented wife.

And, I keep telling myself, Mary's idiosyncrasy never affects her housework. Still, I can't help having my suspicions.

Sometimes I find myself rinsing the dishes she left soapy in the sink because, she says, our 22-month-old son Joel interrupted her dishwashing.

The blinds on our kitchen window have 23 clean slats and 12 dirty ones. Slowly, but surely, the two tones are becoming one.

Maybe I should rebel. I think I'll start by not finishing this column.

Study Shows Effects of Smoking on Breathing

BY ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — A new scientific study may be just what the doctor ordered for those many teenagers who don't think a few occasional cigarettes will hurt them.

The study does not touch on the biggest dangers over the long run, lung cancer and heart disease. In fact, no amount of evidence linking cigarettes with them is enough to convince some youngsters to avoid smoking.

More than 20 cigarettes a day raised the frequency of cough symptoms 32 times higher than what they were for non-smokers and increased the frequency of other symptoms of lung problems almost as much.

Although cancer and heart problems do not usually become evident until later years, they may get their start from only a few cigarettes taken nonchalantly in high school locker rooms.

But if they knew what only a few cigarettes can do to normal lung processes, they might think twice. On the second think, they might realize that even small changes in the lungs are symbols of potentially serious trouble later on.

The latest study was done at the Yale University School of Medicine by Janet E. Scely, Eugenija Zuskin and Arend Bouhuys. It was reported in the May 14 issue of Science, the journal of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

The study was based on breathing tests conducted on 365 high school students in the New Haven, Conn., area. The group included 195 boys and 170 girls. Fifty per cent of the boys and 37 per cent of the girls were regular smokers.

In breathing test, the youngsters blew into a device that measures air volume. The figures were then adjusted for the age, height and weight of those participating.

Results of this test showed noticeable differences between the lung capacity of non-smokers and those who smoked less than one cigarette per week for two years. Differences became greater, depending on how many cigarettes were smoked on the average.

Although some regular smokers (more than 15 cigarettes per day) had higher scores for lung capacity adjusted to their physical size and age, most of the smokers fell well below the average for non-smokers, as shown by a graph of individual scores.

"We conclude," say the authors, "that regular smoking for one to five years is sufficient to cause demonstrable decreases of lung function." In a separate test, they found that lung capacity dropped noticeably even after the smoking of a single cigarette within an hour.

Equally interesting were results obtained from questions asked of each participant. Questions asked about coughing, presence of phlegm (Mucous) in the chest and shortness of breath (if noticed when hurrying on level ground or walking up a slight hill).

Answers showed the incidence of these symptoms varied directly according to the number of cigarettes smoked per day. Even for those who smoked less than one cigarette per day, the frequency of coughing, phlegm and shortness of breath averaged more than double that for non-smokers.

From one to 10 cigarettes per day increased the frequency of coughing symptoms nine times, the frequency of phlegm six times and the incidence of short breath by nearly three times.

The Ailing House

Paneling Matches Antiques

BY ROGER C. WHITMAN

Q: Outside of antiquing, how can I make my light-stained, thin sheets of cheap kitchen wall paneling go with antiques? I want to make it look like outside weather-beaten barn siding. — Worcester.

A: That's a great example of the silk-purse-sow's-ear adage. Do your antiquing and hope for the best.

A: I built an addition to my house. First I poured footings of concrete, then, later, the floor. The footings extend eight inches above floor level. I paneled the walls. Now in cold weather, condensation appears on the paneling for eight-inches up from the floor, right where the footings extend. What can I do? — Milwaukee.

A: About all that's possible now is to have loose insulation blown into the space between paneling and footing. If you had run an eight-inch-wide plank of styrofoam against the footing (called perimeter insulation), this would have prevented the problem.

Q: The previous owner of our house painted the entire interior of the kitchen cabinets with bright red enamel. What paint will prevent its bleeding through new paint? — Columbus.

A: There is no reason why it should bleed through, like mahogany stain. But if you're worried, first coat with aluminum paint.

Q: After storing some carpeting in the basement, we brought it up to put on the stairs. But it has developed quite a noticeable musty odor. How can we take this out? — Hartford.

A: This is one of the consequences of basement storing for fabrics, leather and paper. If you can wait for warm, sunny weather, let the sun and wind work on it. If you're in a hurry, ask a good rug cleaner to handle it.

Cheese Cookery

In cheese cookery, shred or dice cheese first as it will blend more readily with other ingredients. When whipping grated cheese for a dip, bring it to room temperature for best results.

Precautions Urged With Use of Toxic No-Pest Strip

"No pest" strips have been hailed as the answer to the pesky insect problem which plagues homeowners and businessmen each summer," advises H. E. Halliday, chief of pesticide registration with the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture.

"But, few persons are aware of the proper precautions to take when using these 'no pest' strips," he warns.

According to Halliday, the chemical in the strip Vapona (DDVP), a highly toxic pesticide chemical, is incorporated in the resin of the strip and is released slowly into the air.

"Avoid handling the strip, but if you do be sure to wash your hands with soap and water. Read and follow all precautions on the label and keep the strip out of reach of children."

Do not use the strip where food is prepared, processed or served and do not use in nurseries or rooms where infants, ill or aged persons are confined.

At present, officials are requesting the removal of strips being used in restaurants, food plants, dairy plants, institutions and other business places.

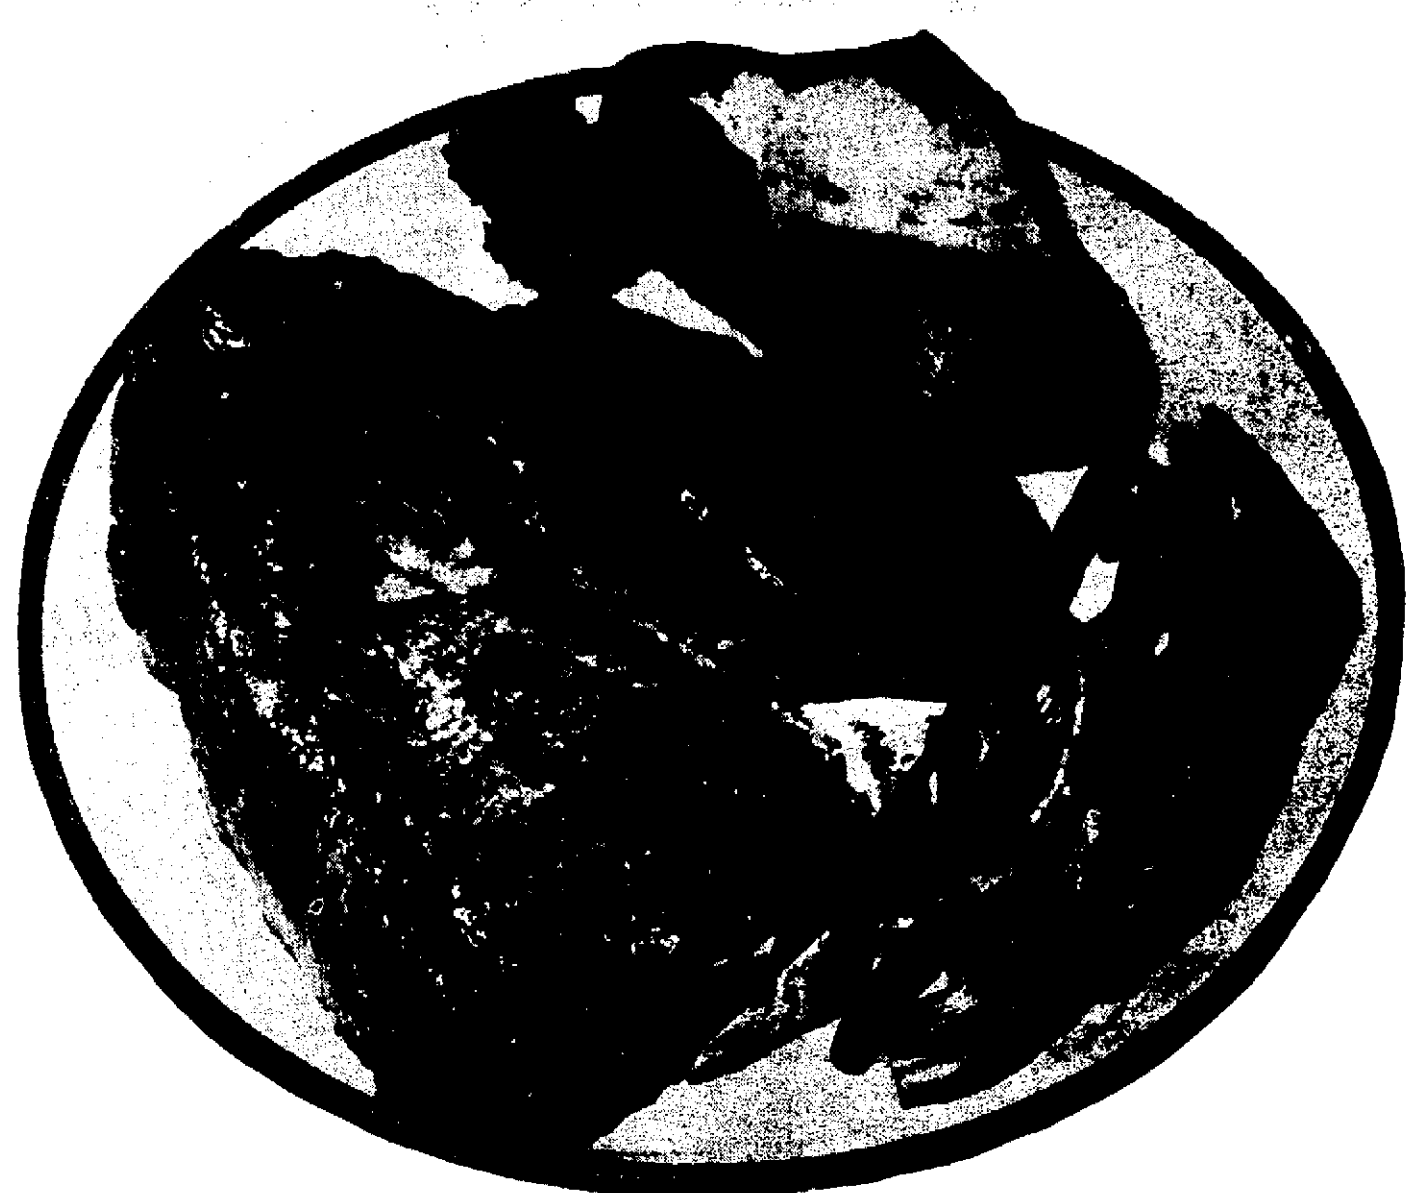

Halliday's advice: "If you use a 'no pest' strip, follow the precautions on the label."

Blanda Glad He Pleased Those Over Age 40

Hopes Young People Look Up To Middle-Aged

BY GEORGE MANCOSKY
Post-Crescent Staff Writer
MENASHA — "If somewhere along the line I made some young people look up to those over 40, then the season was a success."

The speaker was 43-year-old George Blanda, Oakland Raider quarterback, the toast of the middle-aged because of his passing and kicking heroics last fall, who spoke at the eighth annual National 1,000 yard Club Foundation Dinner Tuesday night at Sabre Lanes.

Blanda, the first active player to be the main speaker in the organization's history, said "I guess I made a lot of people over 40 happy last year."

Mixing fact with fiction in his talk, with himself as the hero or goat of the old gags Blanda, in a serious moment, declared that he still thinks he can contribute to the Oakland team and hopes that through his efforts "management will look at the older guy."

He quipped that his wife was pleased when she found out that Walter Brennan was going to Turn to Page 5, Col. 5

Marion Has Only Perfect Mark Patriots, Mustangs Begin State Title Bids Thursday

BY JOHN L. PAUSTIAN
Post-Crescent Sports Editor
Marion's unbeaten Mustangs and Appleton East's first-season Patriots are the big stories in the state public high school baseball tournament, which starts Thursday afternoon in its first baseball team in history, surprised most observers in reaching this high plateau.

The Patriots face Chippewa pre-state tournament record in six Falls (11-4) in Thursday's 3 p.m. battle. It will be preceded by the Beaver Dam (16-1) game.

Marion opens against Beloit Memorial at 8:30 p.m. Thursday. The evening opener is the Chetek (12-4)-LaCrosse (9-6) game.

The Mustangs (17-0) have achieved their second perfect season record in six Falls (11-4) in Thursday's 3 p.m. battle. It will be preceded by the Beaver Dam (16-1) game.

Since the Mustangs and the Patriots are in opposite brackets, it's conceivable that they could meet in Saturday afternoon's finals.

It's a completely new state field this year. All eight finalists of 1970, including champion Wilnot, were eliminated in earlier tournament stages.

Shutout for Kenary Foxes, Bees Divide

BY GENE LILLGE
Post-Crescent Staff Writer
Adrian Kenary spun a 4-hit shutout in the opener, but a last-ditch Appleton effort failed in the second game as the Foxes split a doubleheader with Burlington Tuesday night at Goodland Field.

Appleton won the first game behind Kenary, 3-0. The Bees, with the help of two unearned runs, took the second, 5-4.

The Foxes play host to Burlington again tonight in a doubleheader at Goodland Field. The first game starts at 6:30 p.m.

With their split, the Foxes added a half-game to their Midwest League Northern Division lead since Cedar Rapids in the first inning, and was never threatened from there.

Hard hitting Lamar Johnson supplied the Foxes with the only runs they needed in the first inning. Ross Sapp opened with a single to right, Brian Downing walked, both runners advanced on Jerry Hairston's sacrifice bunt, and Johnson sent them both across the plate with a double of the third baseman's glove.

A lead-off double by Dan Rourke, a ground-out by Kenary and a single by Sapp gave the Foxes an insurance run in the second.

Alan Griffin, who went four innings, was charged with the loss.

Burlington's Pat Tatom got out of several jams in the second game as the Foxes failed to get the key hit when needed.

Appleton had a runner on third with one out in the second and failed to score, they got runners on second with one out in each the third and fourth but left them stranded both times, and loaded the bases with none out in the sixth and managed only one run.

A 2-out triple by Johnson scored Downing with Appleton's first run in the first inning. In the sixth, Johnson singled to center, Joe Talley walked, and Larry Linville beat out a bunt to load the bases. Johnson scored on a wild pitch after Bucky Dent and Joe Morrison each popped out, and pinch-hitter Fred Norton struckout to end the inning.

Johnson Singles
Appleton got its first two runs in the seventh when Downing walked with one out. Hairston grounded out to advance Downing.

Ron Johnson, Brown Differ in Opinions On Grid Discipline

Washington's Larry Brown number of ways, such as how to follow his blocking and having a hearing device installed in his helmet.

Allen has plugged up Redskins weaknesses through his many trades, in Brown's opinion. "I think his main purpose is building defense and building a winner immediately," said Larry.

Brown, in an interview before the 1,000-Yard Club banquet, during which both were enshrined in the exclusive organization, said he feels fortunate that he will be playing for Coach George Allen, who is cast in the mold of the late Vince Lombardi—a stern disciplinarian.

Johnson, on the other hand, says he enjoys playing for Coach Alex Webster, because "he isn't a strict disciplinarian."

Brown fondly recalls Lombardi, for whom he played in his rookie year. Lombardi taught that to play the game well, it is necessary to have discipline and singleness of purpose, said Brown. He recalls that Lombardi helped him personally in a number of ways, such as how to follow his blocking and having a hearing device installed in his helmet.

Allen has plugged up Redskins weaknesses through his many trades, in Brown's opinion. "I think his main purpose is building defense and building a winner immediately," said Larry.

Brown said the Redskins have "the ingredients of a championship team" and believes they can win this year.

Brown is on the light side for a pro running back (185 to 198 pounds), but he said that never bothered him because Don Perkins ("one of the backs I idolized") was about the same size.

Butkus 'Pads Part,' Delights 1,000-Yarders Banquet Has Packer Flavor

BY JOHN L. PAUSTIAN
Post-Crescent Sports Editor
It wasn't a Packer banquet, as such, but some of the principals at the 1,000-Yard club foundation dinner, at Sabre Lanes, Tuesday night gave it quite a Packer flavor.

For openers, there were the unsolicited tributes paid to the Vince Lombardi-era Packers by MC Tom Brookshier, former Eagle star, and Oakland's George Blanda, featured speaker.

Brookshier said, "The Green Bay Packers as a unit — no of religion or race involved here — were the closest football organization I've ever played against."

I would like to have been part of it, but the jobs were all sewed up ... You were witness to a great machine led by a super coach."

Blanda, in referring to the Raiders' experience in the 1968 Super Bowl against Green Bay, called the Packers "the greatest team ever put together ... they could have beaten anybody."

Standing Ovation
Then there was Green Bay's Bart Starr, who, when introduced from the audience, received the first standing ovation of the evening. Brookshier called Starr "the finest spokesman for our game."

The Packer thread was woven into the remarks of Oakland's Jim Otto, when he received the "outstanding blocker" award — but his reference was one of disappointment. He said when he was a boy in Wausau, his ambition was to play for the Packers some day. But when the college draft came along, he said, "I guess I was too small and the Packers ignored me."

Also there was Dick Butkus. And, being an active Chicago Bear, Butkus couldn't be expected to be over-complimentary to the Packers or Packerland fans ... And he wasn't. "I know you're all choked up about having me here," said Dick, "and I'm choked up about being here."

Butkus, in fact, "padded his part," to the delight of the guests and was more loquacious than most previous presenters of the blocking award had been at this annual affair.

Butkus seconded some of Blanda's earlier remarks about the tight-fisted policies of Bear Owner George Halas ("I really can't say anything bad about the man — I've said it all before.") and lampooned the doctors who operated on his knee ("I encountered our medical department this winter, and I was recovering from that surgery when they had to go in again to correct their mistakes.")

(Prior to the banquet, Butkus indicated that he'd be ready to go when summer training camp opens.)

In presenting the 1970 blocking award to Otto, Butkus said he had played against Jim in

Cubs Check Pirates, 1-0 Hank's 18th Tips Cards, 8-7

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer
The Atlanta Braves are up to their old hanky panky with Hank Aaron supplying the spunk and Chief Noc-a-homa the spark.

Hot Hand Hank drilled his 18th home run and a single for his eighth straight hit and Atlanta's No. 1 cheerleader sent up his usual smoke signals during Tuesday night's 8-7, 10-inning triumph over St. Louis.

"I knew I had been hitting well, but I don't keep up with records ... you don't have time to remember things like that on a club this exciting," said Aaron, whose eight safeties in three games were two shy of the National League mark.

Aaron moved over the .300 level for the first time this season with a four-hit night Monday and padded his mark to .313 with Tuesday night's work.

LA Stops Phils
Not bad, considering Hammerin' Hank is playing on one leg. The right knee has fluid in it and is painful, says Aaron.

In the other National League games, Chicago nipped Pittsburgh 1-0 in 12 innings; Los Angeles stopped Philadelphia 4-2; Montreal whacked San Francisco 10-3; New York turned back San Diego 6-4 and Houston whipped Cincinnati 2-0.

Aaron's hitting string included a single and home run on Sunday and two doubles and two singles Monday prior to his two-run homer in the first inning and third-inning single in Tuesday night's affair.

Gil Hodges, Jr. Picked by Mets

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Mets selected first baseman Gil Hodges Jr., son of their manager and a student at C. W. Post College, on a late round of Tuesday's major league baseball draft.

Yesterday's Stars

PITCHING — Ken Holtzman, Cubs, pitched 12 shutout innings, striking out 12 and spacing nine hits, as Chicago stopped the Pittsburgh Pirates 1-0.

HITTING — Danny Cater, Yankees, had two singles, a double and home run as New York turned back the California Angels 3-0.

East's other top pitchers are lefty Dave Meyer and John Allen, both 5-0. Meyer has fanned 42 and walked nine in 41 frames, while Allen has struck out 26 and walked nine in 37 innings.

The Patriots' catcher is Don Werner, one of the most-scouted (by major league clubs) young players in the state. Werner, an outstanding defensive receiver, is batting .328 for 19 games and has socked two homers and five doubles.

East's leading hitter has been Lee Bauman, with a .350 mark for 18 games. Sophomore Dan Heinritz ranks third on the team, with a .292 mark.

The Patriots' starting infield will consist of Bob Pearson, first base; Jerry VanderLinden, second; Dave Heinritz, short; and Mike Heinritz, third. In the outfield will be Gary Voelz, Bauman and Scott Smith.

Three of East's four losses have come by 1-run margins (against Menasha, AHS-W and Kaukauna). An 8-4 loss to Oshkosh was the only one by more than that narrow margin.

The Patriots have won seven in a row.

Chippewa Falls became eligible for its first state tourney with a 9-5 win over Wausau East in the sectional finals.

Light-Hitting Brewers Pick 15 Pitchers

Wausau Hurler, Bob Steif, Only Wisconsin Draftee

NEW YORK (AP) — The Milwaukee Brewers, who have suffered through the early part of this season with very little hitting punch, drafted 15 pitchers among their 23 choices on the first day of the major league's free agent draft Tuesday.

One catcher, four infielders and three outfielders completed the Brewer list of draftees, led by first-choice Tom Bianco, a switch-hitting shortstop from Elmont, N.Y.

Bobby Mattick, the Brewers' director of scouting and player development, said Bianco would be converted to a third baseman if he is signed, and assigned to the Class A Newark N.Y. farm club.

Bob Steif of Wausau, a 6-foot-5 205-pounder pitcher, was the only Wisconsin player taken by the Brewers.

Steif has been an all-state prep basketball choice and also starred in football. Steif has accepted a scholarship offer from Northern Michigan University for basketball and is unsure now about his future plans.

Players drafted by the Milwaukee Brewers in Tuesday's round:

Tom Bianco, shortstop, Elmont, N.Y.
Larry Anderson, pitcher, Poca River, Calif.
Bob Dunn, outfielder, Kennett Square, Pa.
Charles Moore, catcher, Birmingham, Ala.
Edwin Kurtz III, pitcher, Atlantic Beach, Fla.
Duncan Fletcher, Jacksonville Beach, Fla.
Daniel Boliano, pitcher, Fresno Calif.
Jerry Devins, outfielder, Mobile, Ala.
Freddie Tale, outfielder, Birmingham, Ala.
Kevin Koebel, pitcher, Colden, N.Y.
James McCutchin, pitcher, Laveland, Texas.
Stephen Tinsley, first base/outfield, Roxanne, Ill.
Paul Munton, pitcher, Rollinsdale, Mass.
Michael Merritt, pitcher, Wilmington, Del.
Scott Mark, shortstop, Fort Worth, Texas.
Robert Tyler, pitcher, Jacksonville, Fla.
Donald Fisher, pitcher, Parkville, Pa.
Robert Steif, pitcher, Wausau, Wis.
Steven Kendall, pitcher, Wilmington, Del.
Duane Bickell, pitcher, Muskegon, Mich.
Michael Schroeder, shortstop, Houston, Texas.
Walter Pierson, pitcher, Milford, N.J.
Larry Riddle, pitcher, Birmingham, Ala.

reaching the 1,000 yard mark "exciting" and said he never expected to accomplish it in such a short time.

"Webster is the kind of coach I enjoy playing for," maintained Johnson. "I work on my own in matters of conditioning, and I don't like discipline... in fact I sometimes dog it when made to do something... Alex treats us like men... and you can't let a person down who has confidence in you."

Johnson said he was shocked when he first heard of his trade from Cleveland to New York last year but now feels that "it probably was the biggest thing that has happened to me."

The former Michigan stalwart let it be known that he admires quarterback Fran Tarkenton in much the same way he does Webster Johnson said he can't understand the opinion of some who've said that a Tarkenton-led team will never win a title.

"I was greatly impressed by him (Tarkenton) and I hope he plays for six or seven more years," declared Johnson.

"A lot of quarterbacks," elaborated Johnson, "have favorite receivers, and even if they are double- or triple-covered, the QB will try to force the ball to them. Fran will take whatever the defense gives him... we had four receivers with over 40 receptions each last year... He doesn't have the glamor of a Unitas or a Starr, but he knows how to move a football team."

The Giants, who came within one game of a division title last year, can do it this time if they continue the enthusiasm and rapport of 1970, Johnson said.

He noted that he isn't too impressed by individual statistics but feels any contribution to the team effort is important — and that could be throwing a block or putting on a good fake.

delphia. Lefebvre's fifth circuit shot gave the Dodgers a 3-0 lead before Willie Montanez unloaded a two-run homer for the Phillies in their half of the inning.

13-Hit Attack

Bullet Bill Singer had the Phillies blanked on five hits until the sixth. Jim Brewer pitched the last two innings to preserve Singer's fourth victory in 13 decisions this year.

Montreal raked San Francisco ace Juan Marichal for five runs in the first four innings and rode Bill Stoneman's 13-strikeout pitching to a triumph over the spinning Giants, who lost their sixth of seven games.

After Stoneman struck out the side in the first, the Expos pounced on Marichal for three runs in their half of the inning. Mack Jones, who singled in the opening-inning burst, also hit a home run in the second. John Bateman delivered a four-bagger in the fourth to highlight Montreal's 13-hit offense.

Art Shamsky hit a homer and Jerry Grote broke out of an 0-1 slump with three hits and a run, batted in as New York topped San Diego.

Starter Gary Gentry drove in the decisive fifth run in the Astros added another tally in New York fifth, but needed the fifth on Doug Rader's run-late-inning relief help from scoring triple.

Blanda Has No Retirement Plans Otto Says Oliver Was Confused

BY JOHN L. PAUSTIAN
Post-Crescent Sports Editor

Unlike some present and former athletes, Oakland's George Blanda and Jim Otto are very happy with their careers in pro football and have no plans for giving them up.

The Raider pair was among the featured performers at Tuesday's National 1,000-Yard Club Foundation dinner at Sabre Lane.

The amazing, 43-year-old Blanda, who has been in pro football for 22 years, has no plans for retirement. "I feel great... As long as I can contribute, I'll do my thing," said 1970's "athlete of the year."

Otto, perennial all-league center said, "I'm very happy with pro football. I'm with a real fine team, and we have a fine organization."

Asked about Chip Oliver, a former Raider player who evidently wasn't too happy and turned hippie, Otto replied, "He's a good football player... he was upset and a little confused. If he straightens out, he can help our team... We did miss him."

Otto maintained, "A lot of young players don't know what they want."

On the subject of Raider receiver Warren Wells, who has been in trouble with the law several times, Otto said, "If you're an adult, you don't let other people's problems bother

Danny Frisella to notch his fifth victory.

Don Wilson pitched a five-hit game to outduel Gary Nolan in Houston's triumph over Cincinnati. Wilson struck out eight and walked one in gaining his fifth victory in eight decisions.

Nolan surrendered only six hits in seven innings.

Cesar Cedeno knocked in a fourth-inning run for Houston with a force-out roller and the Astros added another tally in New York fifth, but needed the fifth on Doug Rader's run-late-inning relief help from scoring triple.

you." He referred to his post-game effect on team morale slowing up... You've got to have older heads to help stabilize a team."

Otto on Blanda: "I think George can do anything he wants to... He's an outstanding person and a very fine athlete."

Asked if the 1970 season was his best, Blanda responded: "Last year was the greatest as far as publicity and exposure is concerned because of the last-minute things... But personally I've had more satisfying seasons."

Blanda said he hopes his experiences of last year and the performance of such older players as Johnny Unitas and Earl Morrall would help veterans stay around longer in the future. "Some were ushered out of the league too early," said George. "You made one mis-

KC Stops Nats, 4-2 McDowell Fans 11 To Halt Chisox; Boston Clips A's

By HERSHEL NISSENSON Associated Press Sports Writer
It's not quite the same perhaps as the breakfast of champions, but lunching with Gomer Hodge has its advantages as far as Sam McDowell is concerned.
McDowell, Cleveland's fireballing left-hander, had his ceremonial pre-game victory meal with teammate Hodge Tuesday and then feasted on the Chicago White Sox to the tune of 5-3 with 11 strikeouts.
"Give the credit to Gomer," insisted McDowell, who has had either breakfast or lunch with Hodge before each of his five previous triumphs this season.
Baltimore Wins
Elsewhere in the American League, Boston snapped Oakland's five-game winning streak 5-1. Baltimore made it six in a row with a 8-2 rout of Minnesota. Detroit trimmed Milwaukee 8-3. Kansas City beat Washington 4-2 and the New York Yankees blanked California 3-0.
McDowell checked the White Sox on six hits and three walks and raised his record over .500 for the first time this season at .65. The 11 strikeouts marked the 72nd time he has been in the 7th strong innings and gave double figures, increasing his AL record. Sandy Koufax of the Brooklyn-Los Angeles Dodgers led it 97 times, the major league mark.
Both McDowell and battery-mate Ray Fosse were satisfied with the southpaw's performance.
Was a Pitcher
"Tonight I was a pitcher," said McDowell. "Before I was only a thrower. I had more confidence in everything I threw, more confidence than I've had all season. And, for a change, I ing, Johnson singled to score one. Talley walked, and Linville singled home Johnson. Dent grounded out for the last out.

The Bees loaded the bases with one out in the second on singles by Darnell Ford and Keith Lieppman and a walk to Phil Garner. Bill Fitzgerald grounded out to third but Ford crossed the plate.
A walk, single and an error filled the bases again in fifth with one out. Burlington got two runs out of it when Ford singled to right. Charlie Chant's home run and a run-scoring double by Lieppman gave the Bees their fourth and fifth runs in the seventh.
Gene Koon, who pitched the seventh inning for Appleton, was charged with the loss after giving up two runs on three hits. Tatow went six and two-thirds innings, gave up seven hits, three runs, four walks, and fanned seven to gain the win.
Buford Homers
The Orioles shelled Minnesota's Bert Blyleven with five runs in the second inning, two on Mark Belanger's double and two more on Don Buford's eighth home run. Belanger and Dave Johnson each had three hits in support of Pat Dobson's strong pitching.
Lefty Paul Splittorff, making his first start after being recalled from the minors, hurled the 7th strong innings and gave double figures, increasing his AL record. Sandy Koufax of the Brooklyn-Los Angeles Dodgers led it 97 times, the major league mark.
Both McDowell and battery-mate Ray Fosse were satisfied with the southpaw's performance.

play the lead in a movie of Blanda's life.
Relating his years with "Papa" George Halas and the Chicago Bears, the veteran quarterback related that one year they were promised a $250, bonus if they beat San Francisco (which they did) but later were fined $250 when they lost a game.
He explained that one game they played at Akron, Ohio the crowd was so small that instead of the players being introduced they went up into the stands to introduce themselves.
Getting serious again, Blanda said the last four years have been the most memorable of his career, which spans 29 years.
"We lost to the Green Bay Packers in the 1967 Super Bowl but we didn't feel bad because we thought they were the greatest football team ever put together," he continued.
Retired in 1959
Blanda, who went from the coal mining country of Pennsylvania to the University of Kentucky and then the Chicago Bears, said he retired in 1959, but didn't like to work so he decided to join the other league (AFL).
"I must have been twice as good a quarterback because they gave me twice as much money," he remarked, adding that he thought the American Football League was good for the game.
The veteran signal caller explained that in 1949 he was with the Packers for two days. The Bears traded him to the Colts and then he went to the Packers but, through some arrangement, Halas brought him back to the Bears. In those years, Blanda said he also played linebacker.
"I got two raises in Chicago. One year I signed my contract in Canada and the other time I had to break my shoulder."
Referring to the 1,000 yards present, he noted "I never made 1,000 yards and I've been playing 29 years but maybe that is why I'm here while they're there (nine of the 11 present, are retired). "When I ran, it was from sheer fright."

Tigers Maul Brewers, 8-3

DETROIT (AP) — Mickey Krause, 2-7, in the second of Stanley, that "extra" Detroit three games against the Bre-Tiger outfielder, has collected wres in a nine-game home his share of slivers on the stand.
But the only slivers he may superbly in the field, his hitting have encountered Tuesday took some attention from his night were the results of a Gold Glove image, raising his splintering bat that smashed average 21 points to 283 and four hits off Milwaukee pitch helping Mickey Lolich to his ing, including a bases-loaded ninth complete game in a 9-5 triple in the fifth inning, to record.
"He's a great player," Stanley said.
An inning-ended strikeout on seasons with Detroit. "But with two men on base in the what the heck? For a while he eighth "marred" the otherwise wasn't swinging the bat and so perfect night at the plate for he wasn't playing as much as the No. 7 hitter, but he still re-he could have. But now he's ceived an ovation from the swinging good."
Struggling
bleacherites when he moved to his center field spot in the "Not really. Not really," the modest Grand Rapids native.
The victory kept third-place nodded later in the clubhouse. Detroit within 4 1/2 games of "I'm struggling."
American League East leader Last season he led the team Baltimore, which drubbed Min-in five categories, including atnesota 8-2. Milwaukee remains bats (568) and hits (143). He last in the West, 14 1/2 games be-has played in 42 of 54 games hind front-runner Oakland.
Southpaw Les Cain, 3-1, was been as a late inning defensive expected to pitch today for the replacement.
Tigers against righty Lew "When you only play eight guys (plus a pitcher) and they're hitting and I'm not-well, that's the way it should be," Stanley philosophized about his bench riding. "But before the season's over everybody plays a lot."

His big triple came off rookie starter Bill Parsons, now 5-7, and Ed Brinkman squeezed Stanley home with a perfect bunt in the four-run inning pulling the Tigers from a 3-1 deficit to a 5-3 lead.

Dr. Weaver and UW Grading

University of Wisconsin President John Weaver's concern about grade point levels on the Madison campus is particularly interesting in the light of changing attitudes toward all grades at the university level and often in elementary and secondary schools as well.

President Weaver noted with alarm that the average grade points of all students had risen considerably and so had the percentage of honors graduates. The averages are high. For freshmen it is 3.01 or slightly over a B and for all undergraduates 3.13. This contrasts with what Mr. Weaver said was the fairly consistent rating of 2.49 for freshmen and 2.7 for all undergraduates from 1947 through 1967.

There could be many reasons for the increase. College freshmen are better prepared today on high school graduation. In fact a considerable number of higher education institutions are making plans for 3-year programs instead of the traditional four because entering freshmen often have had the equivalent of their first year. This trend also has been reflected in the dropping of many so-called "bonehead" courses aimed at bringing up to a higher level students who did not meet the requirements in some subjects. President Weaver has argued that the raised grade points occurred when there was "no noticeable change in the quality of entering classes as measured by entrance scores and other criteria." But such measuring devices, it is now widely acknowledged, at best give only indications of learning and potential and at worst may be completely faulty especially for students not in the white middle class.

Obviously higher grade points could also indicate a lowering of academic standards by the faculty but there seems no reason why this should have occurred at the University of Wisconsin. The use of pass-fail courses if extensive would also bring up grade points because there would be no low grades — except a solid failure — to keep averages down.

But it is somewhat disturbing for President Weaver to put such emphasis on grade points in evaluating the academic standards of the University. He suggested this is a major criteria among university administrators. If so, it is an artificial one. Abandoning all grades may not be the complete answer in meeting many of the problems that plague higher education today. But less emphasis definitely is being accepted around the country. The issue is controversial and it may be much easier to adapt it at small private institutions than at large public ones. But considering the large size of classes and therefore the lack of personal contact between student and professor in so many cases, reliance upon grade points would seem to be even more doubtful in determining educational progress. Except in exact courses such as mathematics, any grades represent a judgment by the teacher.

Perhaps some institutions have moved too far and too fast in abandoning grade standards. Perhaps a lack of strict grading encourages students to goof off and lowers the prestige of a degree from a particular institution. But the changes on campuses in the last decade and a half go much deeper than grade point levels. We don't really understand why President Weaver seems so concerned.

The Senate and Foreign Affairs

Members of the United States Congress, especially the Senate, have been seeking more authority and influence in decisions on foreign policy since they were stung and perhaps widely fooled by the Tonkin Resolution and the widening of the war in Vietnam. They have expressed such interest in current bills waiting action on limitations of the President's power as Commander-in-Chief and in a lot of rhetoric about Congressional responsibility in such matters.

But President Nixon has tossed to the Senate an opportunity to take a wider role in one specific area and so far the Senate is back to its quid pro quid methods of wheeling and dealing.

The issue is the reversion of Okinawa and the Ryukyu islands to Japan. Former President Johnson returned some of the small islands to Japanese administrative control. President Nixon in 1969 agreed to negotiate with Japan's Prime Minister Eisaku Sato for such reversion to occur in 1972. But Mr. Nixon has been quietly building a plan that would incorporate such reversion in a treaty which would require a two-thirds vote of the Senate. The President apparently has made it clear informally that he wants thorough Senate participation in the decision or, as the Constitution puts it, the "advice and consent" of the Senate.

The problem of getting that two-thirds majority rests upon two opposition groups. One involves the few remaining hawks in the Senate who have some reasonable arguments about reluctance to turn over Okinawa as long as we are committed to the defense, not only of Japan, but of South Korea, Taiwan, the Philippines, and parts of Indochina. This point of view indicates that the Japanese may well dismantle the massive American air base on Okinawa in spite of the economic buffer the base provides to the Okinawans. With our military outposts being cut back in Japan as well, the handicap to an efficient management of our military presence in the far Pacific would be great. The hawks are joined in the belief that we must keep some of that presence for some time by many who vehemently oppose the war in Vietnam.

The other group holding back on approval of reversion wants to trade — stricter Japanese restrictions on exporting textile products to the United States in exchange for the reversion. It may be suspected that President Nixon will have some sympathy at least for this point of view since promises to southern textile industries were part of his "southern strategy" but Southern senators are the ones who now are carrying the ball. A compromise worked out by Representative Wilbur Mills in which the Japanese would limit increases to 5 per cent was rejected by the textile industry in the United States and by Mr. Nixon.

Okinawa is an extremely sensitive issue in Japan. Failure of the Sato regime to get its reversion as the Japanese feel was promised in 1969 could even result in the fall of the government, abrogation of the Japanese-American mutual security treaty, a renewal of Japanese militarism (something Peking is forever warning about but which is also the concern of many Asian leaders who remember World War II), a serious blow to cooperation in trying to maintain peace in Asia. We may well argue that Japan has been the major benefactor of that security treaty but if we lose all bases in the Pacific except those in Korea, Taiwan and our own territories, we would have to limit our influence in that area. This may be for the best but it should be carefully considered.

The conflict in the Senate also serves to demonstrate the handicaps that body has in trying to develop or influence foreign policy. It cannot be kept separate from domestic issues and probably should not. But the Congressional you-scratch-my-back-and-I'll-scratch-yours habit makes clear-cut decisions difficult. So far the Senate has not faced up to accepting the responsibility of foreign affairs which it claims it wants.

Sen. McGovern Has Supporters But He Won't be Nominated

By William F. Buckley, Jr.

At St. Mark's School just outside Boston, the boys are wearing McGovern-for-President buttons. To be sure, McGovern was there recently to plead his own cause, and the fashionable school has a long tradition of what those who like that kind of thing call social "progressivism" — I think it was Scott Fitzgerald who always thought that a Marxist was someone who had graduated from St. Mark's School. Even so, McGovern is edging forward in the fancy of the young as this year's Eugene McCarthy, and it is at this point predictable that nine months from now, the collegiate legions will, for the most part, be wearing the buttons of George McGovern.

All of this would appear to make especially cynical the maneuver of the Kennedyites, if indeed they are engaged in it, as sophisticated politics-watchers believe. The idea is to make George McGovern very strong, so as to neutralize Muskie. But McGovern will never, they reason, capture the popular imagination sufficiently to get nominated. It was so, for instance, with Estes Kefauver, who won primary after primary in 1952 and 1956, but somehow never engaged the public imagination as presidentially.

Dying Ideology
George McGovern has that problem. It should be pointed out that this is not derogation. On the whole, better men and more interesting men are not working for him Frank Mankiewicz and Pierre Salinger.

Now what do all these men have in common? Certainly not beauty. The answer, of course, is Camelot. Those who believe that men of such exalted station are uninfluenced by the dynastic imperative, underrate the romance of it all.

It is too much to say that these men and others have entered the race on the side of Senator McGovern in order to scuttle him when he is near the finish line, permitting Senator Kennedy to slide by to the finish line. It is both kinder and more realistic to suggest that the feel intuitively that Senator McGovern, if he fails, will fail to the benefit of Teddy Kennedy.

Ted Isn't Running
Inevitably, this is at the back of the minds of many men who, surveying the polls and Teddy's apparently ineluctable rise up those polls, find themselves backing Senator McGovern for the lack of something better to do. Senator Kennedy is not running officially.

What disturbs me about it all is that I cannot convince myself that he is running unofficially. Oh, of course he would take it if offered. But I detect a lack of gut-hunger for the presidency, and I think you really need to have that in order to make it. I do not doubt that it is latently there.

But a certain fatalism comes in from Mr. Kennedy these days, and it is reasonable to assume that he thinks his chances small, and that therefore any obvious exertions to achieve the presidency would result merely in ignominy. The American people, he may be reasoning, feel the need to shrive Teddy, to atone for the events at Chappaquiddick, and the way they do that kind of thing is to make him wait one time around. I judge that 1976 will be his year.

But he remains valuable political property just the same. He can quell divisions in the party, appease the left, and help to raise great sums of money — by agreeing to run as a vice-presidential candidate. Along with whom? Along with Hubert Humphrey. That way, you get the establishmentarian vote, and the vote of the young and the restless. Senator McGovern? He would take it bravely. Watch.

the kind who capture public attention as leaders. Senator McGovern should be rejected by the people even if he had the qualities of leadership of Julius Caesar. His trouble is that he is attached to an ideology which is in an advanced stage of decomposition; but never mind that for the minute, back to Senator Kennedy.

Senator McGovern has won the endorsement of the two principal ringmasters of the liberal intelligentsia, Messrs. Arthur Schlesinger and Kenneth Galbraith. He has

Huntley PTA Supporting Appleton East Band Fund

Editor, The Post-Crescent:
Football will not be the highlight of the Orange Bowl this year for Appletonians! The honor which has been bestowed upon the East High band to perform in the Orange Bowl festivities is one well worth recognition. We wish to "beat your drum" in support of the Workers Bureau the students have formed to raise funds to finance the trip to Florida. Posters have been distributed and our membership has been advised of the availability of students who want to work at miscellaneous jobs to help raise funds. We are confident the rest of the community will support your cause. Best wishes for an active summer for the students and enough earned funds to "Send East South."

Once again, congratulations on an honor well placed. Appleton is proud of you!

Wisconsin Report

Observations About Charge Warren Is Compiling Dossiers

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — At intervals in the life of a statehouse watcher there are incidents that appear inexplicable even after scrutiny at length and in detail.

Such a mystery is the decision of the rulers of the Democratic Assembly to set a part, damaging in a highly costly way.

Warren could emerge as a hero instead of a heel. He would have an unbreakable hold upon the titular leadership of the party which has virtually been pushed upon him by the logic of the adverse events recently.

But the watcher of the battleground wonders also whether the attorney general didn't react more violently than the circumstances required. He has expressed concern that the essential confidentiality of the ordinary and necessary and expected files of criminal investigations will be violated.

He has suggested that the very idea of the investigation is a subtle form of intimidation of his crime-inquiry work and the more extensive program of prosecutions arranged by his enlarged staff. Yet such objections impute to the Andersons and the Hubers foolishness as well as knavery, which somehow doesn't go down.

From yet another perspective, the interested observer finds curious the reactions of some elements of the body politic to this extraordinary incident. One public commentary argues that "just in case it should happen to be true that the state attorney general's office was compiling secret dossiers of personal gossip about some legislators" there should be a formal inquiry.

Judgment Is Earnest

Doubtless that judgment was made in all earnestness. It has also been enunciated by some of the louder voices of liberalism in state politics.

But it stands in telling contrast to the response to allegations without documentation in other chapters of Wisconsin political history.

About 20 years ago the late Joseph R. McCarthy as a United States senator was denounced as a contemptible cad for making accusations of unworthy conduct against persons without documentation. The episode bequeathed the word "McCarthyism" to the political vocabulary. It will puzzle some persons, perhaps, to find a distinction in the Kessler accusation without documentation that Robert Warren is running a political espionage operation.

Strictly Personal

Relationships Theme Of New Revolutions

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

If you try to look around at each problem in isolation today, you can't really see what's going on; all seems to be confusion, chaos and and communicant, doctor and patient, student and teacher — in each case, reforms are not merely demanded, but the whole essential nature of the relationship is undergoing a basic reappraisal.

And this multiple revolution is, for the first time in history, a world-wide one — students in France and Japan feel at one with their fellow-students in the U.S.; churchgoers in Holland and Italy are asking the same questions and grappling with the same issues as Methodists in Iowa and Presbyterians in Vermont.

It is a revolution, moreover, that goes far beyond Marxism or any other ideology of our century. It is existential in its thrust, for it questions current relationships on a personal basis. People want to belong to themselves, and not to some abstract system outside themselves; to have human life considered as an "organism," not as a mechanism.

This is what makes the movement new and uniquely different in the history of mankind, cutting across all previous lines of loyalty and authority and tradition. People are asking that, for the first time, they be defined in terms of their essential humanity, rather than as functions of society.

The revolution in relationships has no philosophy, just a faith — that we must, now and here, rethink and rework the very fabric of society, so that the parts run for the sake of the whole, and the whole runs for the sake of the parts. So that we are secure as persons, but free as individuals — a double task that no human society has been big enough or bold enough or good enough to tackle up to now.

Harris

contradiction. In Henry James' phrase, there is no "figure in the carpet."

But if you step back a few paces, and try to obtain a little perspective of time as well as distance, then you begin to see the regular pattern running through the whole carpet of contemporary problems.

And this is what I would call the revolution of relationships. There is a revolution going on today, but it is a multiple revolution, not like the single revolutions of the past. The new revolution is not political, or social, or economic, or moral, but a general questioning of relationships.

Every established relationship, in every significant area, is being questioned today; nothing is taken for granted. The relationships between old and young, black and white, rich and poor, man and woman, warden and prisoner, church

William D. Otto, route 2, Neenah, was cut on the head this morning and taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital, Appleton, after this truck he was driving left U. S. 10, about one-half mile south of Midway Road, in the Town of Harrison. Calumet County traffic officers, who were still investigating the cause of the 5:15 a.m. accident and had not questioned Otto by mid-morning said the tanker truck was northbound on 10 when it left the road, struck two driveway culverts, and came to rest on its side. The truck, owned by Schneider Tank Lines, Neenah, was hauling liquid salt. Above, the liquid is pumped from the overturned vehicle to another tanker. Authorities said the liquid posed no danger of explosion or fire. The liquid is used for controlling dust on gravel roads. (Post-Crescent Photo by Robert Tew)

High Cliff Housing Project Hits Snag in Town Meeting

SHERWOOD — The proposed condominium housing development at High Cliff was the subject of critical debate Tuesday night during the regular Town of Harrison meeting.

A group of 22 residents, mainly from the lakeshore area, opposed the planned structure

Waupaca to Join Resource Development

At budget time last fall the board approved $5,000 to black-top the parking lot at the county jail. Supv. Walter Ciura, towns of Dayton and Farmington and chairman of the public property committee, asked for authority to use most of this money for another purpose.

He explained that a small strip installed for a walkway on the parking lot appears to be adequate, and that the committee wants to air-condition the kitchen of the jail. He said they have one estimate of $1,115.

Permission was granted for the committee to use the $5,000 as it sees fit.

Support for King Home

A resolution was introduced by Supv. Emil Gehrkke, Ward 2, New London, in behalf of the Veterans' Service Commission expressing the interest and concern of the total board on Gov. Patrick's Lucey budget paring which would restrict the care for veterans at the Grand Army Home, King.

"Lucey's proposal would limit the membership at the Home to 720 and provide only domiciliary care," Gehrkke said. "This would make it necessary to give extended care to veterans in qualified county homes under Title-19, which would result in more cost to the county."

In passing the resolution, the county will advise Lucey, Sen. Gerald Lorge and Rep. Francis Byers that it favors the continued operation of the Home at full capacity for veterans with the same kind of care they now receive.

Bus Tour

The supervisors took a bus tour, beginning with the Schuele dairy farm at Manawa where special attention was given to the sophisticated manure storage unit.

Next the board visited the 648 acre tract of upland and swampland provided by the Rev. and Mrs. W. E. Lange at Wilderness Springs, Inc. One of the best known facilities here is the trout hatchery where 225,000 trout eggs are hatched annually. The swamp area, which was developed for waterfowl and fur bearing animals, is the largest part of the development.

After lunch, the supervisors visited the juvenile products division of the Simmons Company, New London.

The Franklin Park Apartments, a 63-unit complex constructed at a cost of $977,904 for low income families, was also visited.

The final stop was a visit to the 42-unit Oakwood Estate, a model mobile home court at route 1, New London.

Wanted the preliminary approval given by the town board April 15, rescinded.

The town board was taken to task about the lack of information about the project being released to the public. It was pointed out that the annual meeting was held April 13, just two days prior, and nothing had been disclosed at the meeting.

Donald B. Schultz, route 1, Menasha stated he felt the electors should have a vote on whether they wanted this type of housing or not. He moved that the preliminary approval given by the town be rescinded and that there be a vote taken.

Chairman's Ruling

Chairman George Schwalbach ruled the motion out of order, and said that motions could not be made from the floor during this type of regular town meeting.

The group wanted more information on the project and the type of people who would be living in them, stressing that they were opposed to the migratory type of residents who would not be interested in the affairs of the problems facing the town.

Problems which could develop regarding sewage which would be pumped into lagoons at the upper level of high cliff were pointed out, and the group opposed an aerated lagoon system being proposed for the town sanitary district and the village of Sherwood. They were critical of our government funding which might be given the project.

Possible Meeting

The town board agreed that it might be possible to arrange a meeting with the realtors. Relocation Realtors of Milwaukee, to explain the project in more detail. However, this, it was stated, could result in only having one side of the story. Schwalbach said the town's attorney would have to be consulted regarding the legality of having a special meeting, or possible referendum on the matter.

Preliminary plans for the condominium were approved June 3 by the Calumet County Planning and Zoning Commission during its regular meeting in Chilton, pending satisfaction of objections regarding lot size and access to each lot.

A public hearing is scheduled

New Bowling Lanes Okayed Waupaca Council Approves Zoning Change for Site

WAUPACA — Theodore Barth was granted permission to construct new bowling lanes north of U.S. 10 and west of County Trunk K after he presented a detailed plan to the city plan commission and the City Council acted in special session Tuesday.

The council changed the zoning on two acres of land, the proposed building site, from single family residential to planned commercial at its June 1 meeting.

The new zoning category gives the city the power to determine what kind of building and its use.

Barth will construct an eight-lane building 50 by 140 feet and install the six lanes he now has at the Uptown Bowling Lanes. It will have a 40 by 50 foot barroom and an elevated concourse area between that and the bowling lanes.

The building will be pole-type construction of steel with a wood interior. The entrance will face southeast.

Construction is to start immediately and plans call for completion before Labor Day.

Two of Oldest Residents of Fox Cities Die

Two of the oldest residents in the Fox Cities, John H. Kutz, 95, 303 N. Morrison St., and William H. Taylor, 96, 119 E. Third St., Kaukauna, died Tuesday at their homes.

Taylor had been a Kaukauna resident for the past 52 years. He had retired in 1950 from the sewing machine business. Survivors are two daughters, a son, a sister, three grandchildren and a great-grandchild. Visitation will be after 3 p.m. Thursday at the Fargo Funeral Home. Funeral services will be at 2 p.m. Friday from the funeral home with burial in the Union Cemetery, Kaukauna.

Kutz had worked for Tuttle Press. Funeral arrangements are incomplete and pending at the Bretschneider-Tretfn Funeral Home.

Kaukauna Commission Names New Officers

KAUKAUNA — Clayton Kiffe was elected chairman of the fire and police commission at a recent reorganizational meeting. Edwin Thelen was named vice chairman.

Norman Foxgrover was appointed secretary.

Outagamie Is Only Hope to Halt Proposed Trailer Park

Rushing to head off a zoning change that would place a 280-unit mobile home park just outside Appleton, Mayor George Buckley Tuesday conceded that his only hope lies in the Outagamie County Board.

The mayor Monday pushed through the plans commission measure urging the City Council to claim its extraterritorial zoning authority within 3 miles of the city limits. The council receives the recommendation June 16.

The action is an opening step in freezing zoning outside the city limits, which, if accomplished soon enough, would prevent the county board from rezoning the mobile home park site.

But the resolution itself is without effect on zoning. An interim zoning ordinance would be required to invoke the freeze, and in the time it takes to put an ordinance into effect, the county board could approve the zoning change.

Ald. Donald Day (19th), representative of the ward adjacent to the Town of Grand Chute mobile home park site, told the newsman after the plans commission acted Monday that he feared the action may be too late.

Faith in County

Buckley today advised having faith in the county board.

"You have to place some faith in the county — not just the zoning committee itself, but that the members of the county board would not permit something like this to happen," he said.

By recognizing that time is too short for the city to act ahead of the County Board, Buckley contradicted an opinion he gave a citizen during the commission meeting. Asked then whether the city has time to prevent the mobile home development, Buckley replied, "Legally, I think we do have the time."

Waupaca to Join Resource Project

WAUPACA — The Waupaca County Board voted Tuesday to become a part of the Golden Sands Resource, Conservation and Development Project, a move which will qualify the county for 50 per cent federal funding on its future natural resource projects.

Golden Sands is the third Resource Conservation and Development (RC&D) district to be formed in Wisconsin and will, when Waupaca County is officially accepted in July, include Adams, Jackson, Juneau, Marathon, Marquette, Monroe, Portage, Waushara, Wood and Waupaca counties.

Before action was taken, Kenneth Halverson, soil conservationist, explained that RC & D projects are designed to help people take better care of their natural resources, draw all interests in the area — rural, suburban and urban — to work together and are locally initiated, sponsored and directed.

Cost Share Funds

"The U.S. Department of Agriculture is authorized to provide local groups with technical and financial help and the Soil Conservation Service provides the leadership on the program," he said. "This will enable Waupaca County to receive cost share funds on many projects."

Supv. Harold Steenbock, Town of Larrabee and member of the county education and agriculture committee, said that the county directors of Golden Sands had given the Waupaca Committee a cordial reception at a recent meeting at Wisconsin Rapids.

Supv. Carl Much, Big Falls and towns of Dupont and Wyoming, another committee member told the board that Golden Sands is ready for funding and in the first year may receive as much as $100,000 for technical assistance and $50,000 for projects from the federal government.

"This will make our agriculture money go twice as far as it has," Much said. There are approximately 80 such districts in the United States.

By joining at this time, the county will get a share of the funds when projects are approved. The Golden Sands directors took a straw vote at the Wisconsin Rapids meeting to accept Waupaca County and will act formally on the admission at its July meeting, supervisors were told.

The vote to join was unanimous. Turn to Page 8, Col. 1

More Time for Possible Merger

BY DON CASTONIA
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Outagamie County supervisors will wait another two weeks before making up their minds on which direction to move on regional planning.

After twice narrowly blocking attempts to halt action on the issue, the board voted to adjourn to June 22 to await further developments in the merger talks between the two regional planning agencies.

Supv. Edward Spierings, Little Chute, a member of the Fox Valley Council of Governments (COG) governing board, proposed that the county withdraw from the Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission "to allow the reorganization necessary to have a merger." The proposal includes that if a merger did not come about by the time the county adopted its 1972 budget, the county should petition for readmission to Northeastern.

Efforts to first block consideration of the motion and later to table it lost by identical 23-22 votes, although the lineup of supervisors on the two votes differed considerably.

Decision to Wait

The decision to wait another two weeks before taking action was made on the basis that the county has until June 30 to give notice if it wants to withdraw from Northeastern at the end of the year and more time should be given to see if present merger talks make any progress.

The vote to adjourn, which was 29-16, came at 12:30 a.m.

Supv. G. Allen Bubolz, whose father is chairman of the Northeastern Regional Planning Commission, led the opposition to Spierings's proposals. "If we pass this we will throw a wedge in the negotiations," he said. "To put this axe over Northeastern's head, is a unilateral action," he contended, saying the county could not put similar pressure on COG.

Bubolz said, "If this motion passes there are no guarantees for anyone. Before we take this harsh action, we should have a solution before us."

Spierings noted that COG had earlier changed its bylaws to permit its members to withdraw on a one-month notice and Buchanan chairman, said his town would be giving its withdrawal notice next Tuesday.

Nothing to Lose

Supv. Kenneth Gibson, Appleton, said, however, he did not think the county had anything to lose. "They won't refuse us to rejoin," he said, referring to the possibility the merger talks could fail. "They got close to merger once before and blew it."

Earlier, a resolution authored by Supv. Kurt Koletzke, Appleton, asking that the members of COG be excluded from the assessment for the county's membership in Northeastern, was ruled invalid.

The corporation counsel ruled that state statutes require the costs be spread across the entire county if more than one-half of the county territory belongs to the commission.

Koletzke claimed this resulted in double taxation on the COG members. "Taxation without representation started the revolutionary war," he said.

Koletzke claimed the board's policy and finance committee, which had recommended the board not act on withdrawing from Northeastern, was "too close to Northeastern."

Noting that G. Allen Bubolz was on the policy and finance committee, Koletzke said, "I'm not against Gordon Bubolz or Allen, but blood is thicker than water."

He recalled that at the policy and finance committee hearing on the planning issue, Charles Hervey, Northeastern's director, had offered to resign and had said Gordon Bubolz would resign if it would help. He also noted that G. Allen Bubolz had asked Eugene Franchette, COG's director, if he could do the same and that Franchette had since resigned, although to take a better job.

New London Construction Road Project Ends As Another Begins

NEW LONDON — Merchants on the south side are preparing for the reopening of Pearl Street as their north side counterparts prepare for the onslaught of construction.

Joski Construction Co. has begun working on the sanitary sewer, along North Water Street, in the Shawano and North Pearl streets area. Traffic is hampered in a one block area as construction progress through the business district.

Within the next four weeks curb and gutter and sidewalk construction on N. Water will begin. Sommers construction Co. has curtailed work in order to give Joski the opportunity to advance far enough ahead so that the crews won't conflict.

The City Council approved this because it is possible that some sewer leads may have to be replaced by Joski and the council did not want to see the sidewalks and curb and gutter torn up right after sewers are in place.

Although shoppers will have some difficulty shopping on the north side, there are many city parking lots offering off-street parking that are accessible from the north.

Work on North Water Street is expected to take about four to six weeks.

The south side merchants are preparing to open their front doors again, as crews from Murphy Construction Co. progress with the laying of black top on Pearl Street.

It is possible that the street will be open by the end of the week. Sommers' crews have completed their portion of the work on the south side and will have just the north side to concentrate on when they return to the city.

When the projects are complete, the city will have new curb and gutter and sidewalk from Beacon Avenue north on Pearl Street to North Water Street and west to Shawano Street.

In addition, the intersection at North Water and Shawano streets will have been remodeled to include a right turn lane to facilitate travel flow in the downtown area. This area will also be repaved.

Ecology Education Program Planned for Youth in Region

A program is being formulated with the weighty goal of educating the youth of northeastern Wisconsin about the environment and the dangers to it.

Whether it's incorporated this summer depends mainly on approval of a $9,505 federal grant applied for through the Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission. Approval is expected this month.

Under the one-year grant, teacher leaders and a few students in high schools would be trained on ecology teaching methods this summer. Next fall, they would begin educating other students through individual ecology clubs. The clubs would be formed next fall.

The education will include disseminating information and field work, such as water testing, a watershed cleanup project and the construction of a trail, possibly a Braille trail, at the planned nature center north of Appleton.

The program was conceived in the one-year-old Student Environmental Advisory Council (SEAC) an informal organization of students started by Northeastern.

Stephen Power, Northeastern biologist, and Appleton High School-East teachers, Michael Funk and John Main, will be preparing the teacher leaders and students for the ecology club program. Power was an adviser to SEAC, and Funk and Main are advisers to SEAC and the East ecology group.

Power said the program would have to be greatly scaled down if the grant isn't approved, or delayed slightly if the group has to re-apply after July 1. But he said he expected the money would be forthcoming this month.

The funds are available under the federal Environmental Education Act. Of the $2 million allotted, Wisconsin got $40,000 but applications are coming in at a plus-30 per day clip, Power said.

If the grant is approved, Power and the two teachers would be hired for the summer to train the teacher leaders and students, and then one full-time person would be hired for the remainder of the school year to coordinate activities.

"The big kickoff would come next September when the individual school ecology clubs would be formed by these teacher leaders," Power said. "We feel that even though it's just a small group — say 30 students from each school — we still will have the most interested ones."

These students and teachers then will give tours and slide presentations to inform other students on what ecology is, what air and water pollution are, and how the environment functions. Eventually, junior high students will be approached, and the adult community will be offered the benefit of this knowledge, Power said.

"Our goal is to train students and teacher leaders to educate young people and adults about the environment and the things which are threatening to destroy it," he said.

Some action projects are planned this summer but the major ones are slated for next summer. Power said he hoped that after one year the ecology clubs could be self-sustaining through income from their paper, can and glass drives and other projects.

Stockbridge Seeks OK for Natural Gas

Board Approaches 2 Firms to Consider Serving the Area

STOCKBRIDGE — Natural gas is being sought by this community.

The village board agreed Monday night to approach Wisconsin Public Service, based at Green Bay, with offices at Chilton, and Wisconsin Gas Co. of Milwaukee, operated from Kaukauna, to consider extending the service to this community.

In 1967, Wisconsin Public Service Corp. approached village authorities and received approval to service the village. This was at the time the utility was seeking Wisconsin Public Service Commission approval to extend its lines via Stockbridge to the Sherwood-High Cliff area. After public hearings in Madison, Wisconsin Gas Co., which already had lines in the Town of Harrison, was granted the franchise.

Last month, after receiving several requests from residents for natural gas, village officials wrote to the Public Service Commission asking why the service was never extended here. Information leading to the granting of the franchise to Wisconsin Gas Co. was given by the commission, explaining that the utilities still could make application to serve the Stockbridge area.

The board, in inviting both companies to request the Public Service Commission's approval, noted that Wisconsin Gas Co. is serving the Sherwood area, and Wisconsin Public Service Corp. serves the Hilbert area.

Court Refuses To Dismiss Conduct Charge

CHILTON — Calumet County Judge D. H. Sebor has denied all motions for dismissal of a charge of lewd and lascivious conduct against Michiel's Bowl, Sherwood.

The judge made his decision after briefs in the matter were filed by the defense counsel and the district attorney.

The attorneys presented oral arguments in the case before, Sebor several weeks ago at which time he ordered briefs to be prepared.

A complaint by a patron who was in Michiel's Bowl Dec. 16, 1969, stated that a female entertainer exposed herself during the performance. The case will be heard by the Circuit Court later this month before Circuit Judge William Crane.

Trapshooting Interest Picks Up at Clintonville

CLINTONVILLE — Interest annual membership in other towns. "Ours is a real bargain to them," one club official stated. Memberships are $2.

Trap shooting will begin at 8 p.m. today at the trap range. Shells are available, either new or reloads, in 12 gauge.

At the last shoot, a new system of recording progress potential shooters cannot be accommodated.

Participants say the range and there is one of the nicest around and there is agitation for installation of another trap.

The trap club was reactivated and Dennis Germas and Lyle for Clintonville people. Wednesday nights will be kept open for 25.

Youth scores also are being posted. Larry Zillmer, Bear Creek, is high with eight out of 10, and Jerry Mehlberg is right behind with six out of 10.

Clintonville Rescue Squad Gets Donation

CLINTONVILLE — A check of $455.50 was presented to Chief Ed DuFrane, head of the Clintonville Volunteer Rescue Squad by a group of area residents "in appreciation for its services."

The residents from the Clover Leaf Lakes area and the Town of Belle made the donation Monday evening. The funds came from a May 22 auction conducted for the benefit of the rescue squad.

Mr. and Mrs. Kelly Weiler, owners of "The Dock" tavern at Clover Leaf Lakes, were the principal organizers of the benefit. Among volunteers were Frank Bucholtz, auctioneer, Gary Below, Dave Martin and Dick Koeller, clerks, and Seth "Zip" Anderson, traffic director.

CLINTONVILLE — School district business usually conducted during the annual meeting of the district in July could be delayed this year for most of the summer.

Supt. V. J. Wadleigh reported to the board of education at its regular meeting Tuesday night on the difficulty being encountered in preparing a proposed budget for the annual meeting of the Clintonville district. The state has not adopted its budget so it is not known just what the figure will be for state aids, or whether or not the teacher retirement portion will become a local responsibility. He said it was conceivable that these two items could raise the local tax rates by two and one-half mills.

Wadleigh said that it is possible for the electors of the school district to meet and then recess to reconvene prior to Oct. 1 to change the assessment, as under the present situation, it wouldn't be possible to have a fixed budget at the time of the annual meeting.

He stated that an alternative would be for the electors at the annual meeting to authorize the board of education to act on its own to change the levy to meet the operational costs.

Bus Program

A report on a school bus transportation and safety conference which Wadleigh attended recently at Green Bay pointed out the merit of recognizing permit basis and does not have a bachelor's degree.

The board authorized the clerk to request bids for approximately 100,000 gallons of No. 2 fuel oil; 60,000 gallons gasoline; approximately 84,000 one-half pints of white milk and 210,800 one-half pints of chocolate milk; and approximately 40 bus tires, size 9:00 x 20, 10 ply. Bids are to be submitted to the board by June 22.

Bids on the sale and removal of two homes which the district recently purchased on Waupaca Street are due June 15.

A petition signed by approximately 170 adults and students was read requesting that James Salaman (junior high instrumental instructor and band director) be allowed to return to teach at Clintonville. The petition cited the fact that Salaman has greatly improved the performance of the junior high band; he has given much of his own time; he has become involved in community activities; and he has won the friendship and approval of the students.

Salaman has taught at Clintonville for the past two years and taught at Bear Creek for two years prior to that. However, he has been teaching on a

State's Delay on Its Budget Could Stall School Districts

Two Towns Support Waupaca County Plan

WAUPACA — The 20-year comprehensive study plan prepared by the Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission for the Waupaca Area Council of Governments (WACOG) has been unanimously approved by the residents of the Town of Farmington and the Town of Dayton.

Public hearings have been set by the Town of Lind for 8 p.m. Monday in the Village Hall and by the Town of Waupaca for 8 p.m., Wednesday, June 16, in the Waupaca Armory.

The public hearing for the City of Waupaca, the fifth member of WACOG, has not yet been set.

There were 20 interested residents of the Town of Farmington at the June 4 meeting and the item of primary interest to them was the plan's proposal for establishing a sanitary district on the Chain O' Lakes.

"There was no opposition," reports Fred Jensen, Farmington chairman. "We heard the report of John Edwards, planner for Northeastern. They understood it and asked questions about what steps are next to establish the sanitary district. As I understand it, the next step will be for residents on the Chain to petition the town boards of Farmington and Dayton, since the Chain O' Lakes lie wholly within these two towns.

18 Present

Dayton's Public Hearing Monday was attended by 18 residents and after listening to Edwards, asked some relative questions and voted unanimous approval.

Relative to growth of Dayton's population, projected in the study, one resident wanted to know if there would be room for everyone, or would there be a stopping point. Dayton, according to the study, is the fastest growing area in WACOG.

With this big influx of people, other residents wanted to know, what is the employment picture going to be like and how will rising taxes be met by people retiring to the area?

Walter Ciura, chairman of the Town of Dayton board and chairman of WACOG reported that he had a number of calls and letters from Dayton residents, who could not attend the hearing, but indicated their interest and support.

"We, the executive committee of WACOG ask at this point, since the study is complete, and approval by all units of government looks promising, that there be some action and in proper sequence," Ciura stated. "I feel that they are all going to adopt the study, that it is going to work and that WACOG can move."

"As I see it, the first thing to do on the sanitary district is to hire an engineer, have him make recommendations for the area and then form the sanitary district. The legal process is now being worked upon by WACOG attorney."

The WACOG meeting scheduled for 8 p.m. Thursday has been postponed, according to Ciura, and a meeting will be called when the five units of government, individually, have acted on the comprehensive plan.

Student Starts Paper to Educate Fellow Indians

MARQUETTE, Mich. (AP) — Great Lakes Indian Youth Alliance, insisting there was no massacre when Indians took the fort in 1763, Wright argues what took place was "a strategic victory for the Indians."

The tool for Michael Wright, an Ojibway Indian and freshman at Northern Michigan University, is a newspaper published by himself and other Indian students at the school.

A primary purpose of the newspaper, called Nishnawbe, will be to inform the Indian "what he's entitled to by treaty and under various federal programs and to help toward unity of a now-divided people," Wright said.

The newspaper's name, pronounced Nish-naw-be, translates in the language of many Indian tribes into "first man" or "original man," according to Wright.

Monthly Issues

The newspaper will be printed monthly, beginning in mid-June with a free circulation of 3,000 among Indians of the Great Lakes region, and Managing Editor Wright says enough funds have been scratched together to assure at least a year's operation.

One issue on which Wright had planned an inaugural campaign already has been won. What once was advertised as "The Re-enactment of the Massacre at Fort Michilimackinac" was among the simply was billed as "The Fort Michilimackinac Pageant" this year.

Wright was prepared to lend Nishnawbe's support to Charles "Moose" Pamp, director of the

His mother dead and his father away, Wright said he lived with his grandmother at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., as a youngster, had nobody to help him with his lessons, didn't get good marks, was prone to trouble and finally ended up "a high school pushed-out" at the ninth grade.

It wasn't until after he was drafted into the Army in 1960 and began getting above-average grades on various examinations there that he finally decided maybe he had the ability for a high education, Wright said.

Assembly Line

He took a 16-week course and became an Army medic working in neuropsychiatry. After going to work on an auto assembly line in Pontiac, Mich., Wright enrolled in a 10th grade English course, in which he maintained a B average, and in mathematics, in which he had an A average.

But he says that finally he "just couldn't take it any more" on the assembly line and fled "from the noise and the smoke" to his native northern Michigan Ojibway country.

The unemployment rate there already was high and growing but the Michigan Employment Security Commission wangled him a job on a city beautification project.

Afterward, it qualified him for training as a radio and television repairman at Marquette.

College Scholarship

It was here he learned that he qualified for a Bureau of Indian Affairs college scholarship he could pass the so-called General Education Test (GED), designed to show the equivalent of a high school education. He also passed the ACT (college entrance) test and was accepted at Northern.

Wright is majoring in social work and plans to work among Indians upon graduation. He also found a strong desire to serve their people among Northern's other 16 Indians.

The newspaper proposes to report developments of both general and local interest to Indians in the fields of civil rights, education, welfare, health, housing and employment opportunity. It also is starting an Indian reference library at Northern.

While Wright says Northern Michigan has given Nishnawbe complete autonomy, he concedes the newspaper is getting an initial publication thrust from Earl McIntyre, Northern's director of communications, and James Carter, its director of research and development.

Wright's title of managing editor is tops on the paper. His aides are known as secretaries of various departments, not editors. Like him, they were chosen by fellow Indian students.

Printing Bill

McIntyre and Carter are acting as advisers. The university is furnishing the newspaper an office and telephone, and the first month's $400 printing bill is being scrounged from some of Carter's research funds.

Michigan has large colonies or reservations of Indians at Bay Mills, Hannaville, Watersmeet, L'Anse and Sault Ste. Marie in the Upper Peninsula and at Petoskey, Mount Pleasant and Detroit in the Lower Peninsula.

Minnesota and Wisconsin, which also border Lake Superior, the lake Gitche Gumez in Longfellow's Tales of Hiawatha, also have sizeable Indian populations, as do Illinois and some other Midwestern states.

To Your Good Health

After Breast Surgery, Her Clothes Didn't Fit

By G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: You are my last resort, and maybe other science women have the same problem I have. Three years ago I had one breast removed, and haven't felt comfortably dressed since.

No one seems to know what kind of bra to get for this, or where to get it. An ordinary bra does not stay put in the right position. — N.L.M.

I'd rather not be the "last resort," because I think better sources of information are available.

I have friends with the same problem (breast surgery is not by any means an unusual necessity) and they get along very well.

For what I can tell you: it depends on the size you need. If relatively small, I am told that foam rubber "falsies" can be bought in the dime stores. Sewing one into a bra keeps it in position.

For larger sizes, most department stores (or corsettieres, if there are any left) can supply a filled-out bra that will stay put.

I'm told this is a matter of shopping around to find what you want. If you are in a small community, you may very likely have to go to a larger city.

If you still have trouble, I'd suggest getting in touch with one of the cancer societies — a one of the cancer societies — a branch of the American Cancer Society, or some of the others — since a considerable proportion of such surgery is because of cancer. Therefore, these groups can put you in touch with others who have solved the problem.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is the cause of constant ringing in the ears? My doctor sometimes gives me a shot that makes me feel warm all over. What is it, and what is it for? — S. R.

There are various causes of ringing in the ears not just one single cause. Best I can suggest is that you read my booklet, "Ear Noises: Their Causes and Cures." Send 15 cents and a self-addressed, stamped envelope for a copy.

Second question: It could be a vasodilator — a medication that increases circulation temporarily by letting the blood vessels expand a bit, but that's a pretty far guess. Let me suggest one way of finding out what he is giving you and what for. Ask him.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Our family has been arguing for quite a while over whether hair is living or dead. My father says it is living and my two brothers and I say it is dead. We learned so in school. — S. M.

I can think useful things to argue about — but hair (and the same is true of fingernails) is inert. It doesn't grow once it has appeared above the surface of the skin.

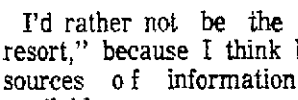

The new hair, growing below the surface, pushes the rest of it ahead. The living tissues of the body — flesh, bone, blood, and so on — are constantly being replaced, cell by cell. Hair isn't. Let's say it is inert.

Better tell dad I voted against him.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can cataracts be removed before they are ripe? I was told they would come back if taken off before they are ripe. Also can you take vitamins and get rid of cataracts? — Mrs. R. T.

Cataracts can be removed any time they interfere with vision. They cannot come back because the "cataract" is the entire lens of the eye, when it has become cloudy. The whole lens is removed. No, vitamins will not get rid of cataracts.

SOMEBODY HAS TO MAKE HOME REPAIRS—IT MIGHT AS WELL BE YOU!

The old "stitch in time saves nine" saying was never more apt than in the case of home repairs.

A repair that may cost a couple of dollars and a little of your time can result in hundreds of dollars worth of damage if neglected. Somebody has to make the repairs. It might as well be you—especially these days, when you can't always get a repair specialist when you want him and when labor costs are higher than they have ever been.

It is true that there are some home repairs that require the services of a specialist. But you can handle most of them yourself, even with little or no previous experience. To help you make such repairs, Andy Lang, AP do-it-yourself expert, has prepared PRACTICAL HOME REPAIRS in easy-to-understand language.

You can save many times the $1 cost of this practical handbook if it enables you to make even a single repair. The following subjects are covered in PRACTICAL HOME REPAIRS: (Be sure to add 04 sales tax)

To Win Metal Car Kits

BY CAPPY DICK

Two Action-Pak Strip-'N'-Steer model automobiles manufactured by Model Products Corporation will be awarded to each boy or girl who becomes one of five national grand prize winners in today's easy puzzle contest.

These small, but realistic model cars are made of metal and have doors, hoods and

To qualify for consideration at the national level a contestant's entry must first win a local award which in today's contest will be a transparent plastic tube bank with a metal screw-on top. This bank is designed to hold dimes. A scale printed on its side will tell the total value of the dimes it contains. Five of these banks will be awarded to boys and girls of the Fox Cities and five will be awarded to young readers in each of the other Cappy Dick cities. Entries winning these awards will be reconsidered by the contest judges in their search for the five that are the neatest and most original of all.

The puzzle to solve is in the picture above where the letters of two words are scrambled. Properly arranged, the letters will spell two words that all boys and girls like.

When you know what the words are, clip out the picture, paste it on paper and print the words beneath it along with your name, age, address and Zip Code number. Decorate the entry in any neat, original way with paints, crayons or cutouts. Address it to Cappy Dick's Strip-'N'-Steer Contest at The Post-Crescent and mail it before midnight of day after tomorrow.

Prize winners' names will be published here. The awards will be delivered to their homes by mail. Judges' decisions will be final. All entries become Cappy Dick's property; none returned. Tomorrow: Directions for making a novel flower ball!

Rod Serling's Night Gallery Spooky, Good

BY TV SCOUT

9-10 Channel 5 — Four-in-One: Rod Serling's Night Gallery has two spooky, excellent tales. The first, "The House," adapted by Serling from an Andre Maurois story (and directed by actor John Austin) is a different ghost story. It takes place in bright sunshine in a cheerful house. Joanna Pettit is the young lady whose persistent dream comes true. Steve Franken is a psychiatrist and Paul Richards a real estate agent. The second story has Agnes Moorehead as a dying old woman, with Louis Hayward as her bitter brother, waiting for her to die (and helping her achieve that end?) and Rachel Roberts and Grayson Hall as her sisters, one passive and one active. (R)

6-30-7:30 Channels 2-7 — Men at Law has Sharon Farrell as a sexy lady on relief who says a social worker raped her. Hero Robert Foxworth thinks this is certainly within the realm of truth, but is he correct in his belief? (R)

6-30-8 Channel 5 — Men From Shiloh has a fair tale about changes in the West which have brought about the end of an era for the once-fierce Comancheros. Ricardo Montalban plays the leader of the last of the Comancheros, a man of decent instinct. (R)

7-30-8 Channels 2-7 — That family on To Rome With Love keeps meeting royalty. Tonight Alison flips for a young Austrian count (Mark de Vries), whose mother (Victoria Shaw) is most anxious to check the financial worth of the Endicotts. (R)

8-8 Channel 5 — Host Des O'Connor welcomes guests Jack Benny and Connie Stevens on The Des O'Connor Show

Glad You Asked That

BY HY GARDNER

Armed with dozens of questions about Mickey Rooney, we invaded his dressing room at the Coconut Grove Playhouse (Florida) with a tape recorder. Flushed with triumph at the way his hilarious new play, "Three Goats and a Blanket," won the acclaim of audiences and critics alike, Mickey faultlessly fielded the questions we hurled at him. The following is verbatim:

Q: What does the title of your play mean?

A: "It's where alimony started. In the old Phoenician times, around the 4th century, when a guy asked for a divorce, the judge would grant it and award the wife three goats and a blanket. Then some loud-mouthed broad in Damascus said it wasn't enough. And the first thing you know the judge threw in a couple of chickens. Then a plow. And when money was invented, she wanted that!"

Q: Any truth to recurring reports that you've paid millions in alimony?

A: "Those astronomical figures are ridiculous. I've never paid any alimony — just lump settlements. I'll admit I've had my lumps, but I think a woman should be pensioned till she gets on her feet."

Q: You've been married seven times. Ever see any of your ex's?

A: "I'm friendly with all my ex-wives. And while some joker suggested we stage a reunion sometime I can't afford to rent the Hollywood Bowl."

Has 9 Children

Q: How many children do you have by these wives, Mick?

A: "I've got nine — five sons and four daughters. My oldest son is 25, another is 24, and my youngest is an adorable girl just 16 months old. I'm also blessed with two beautiful grandchildren, thanks to my 21-year-old son."

Q: Are all the boys shorties like pop?

A: "No, sir. I've got one son who is 6-foot-4 and weighs 190 pounds. In the first movie I ever made ("Orchids and Ermine" with Colleen Moore) I was only 23 months old and I played a midget. I think that's why I didn't grow very much."

"Crude, Stupid"

Q: Would Mickey Rooney ever appear in the nude on stage or in a film?

A: "Nudity in movies is completely crude and stupid. There's nothing clever about it and I think the public is really fed up with all that sewage sensationalism. I'm going to produce six movies this year, including "Three Goats," and they'll all be strictly entertainment. You can bring your kids to see without getting embarrassed. There's an old axiom in show business—whenever you lose your talent, you have to work dirty. I never did—never will."

Q: You grew up in the movie business. What do you think of Hollywood today?

A: "After 50 years in this business, I'm sad to see what's happened to Hollywood. I think the movie business has almost committed suicide through its idiotic expenditures, overbudgeted greed, lack of good taste, and not having a reservoir of good Americana — good, clean entertainment. It's become too political. It's like any apple that ripens. Grass will grow but any fruit that's picked will rot and never grow. Hollywood plucked the vine but never replanted the seeds. Studios are empty. You read about Dick Zanuck moving over to Warner Brothers. Who cares? Does it say what pictures he's going to do? Can he write? What does he do? That's not saying that Zanuck isn't a brilliant young guy. He is. But

What to Look for When Buying Bottled Water

BY SYLVIA PORTER

In a mounting number of homes we visit, our hosts serve us our scotch highballs with bottled water. In a mounting number of supermarkets, gourmet and health food stores I check. I see a bewildering array of bottled waters and find myself wondering "What brands are tops?" and "what does 'spring water' really mean?"

From next to nothing in the period before water pollution became a global concern, the bottled water industry has soared to a point where we are spending more than $100 million a year for the product — and Here are 10 guides I obtained from John G. Scott, president of commodity. From a few world-renowned health spas — Vichy Celestins, Evian, Perrier, Contrexeville and Badoit in France, Fiuggi in Italy, Apollinaris in Germany, Hot Springs in the U S — the sources of bottled water have expanded to a point where an estimated 700 companies are now in the business of bottling for local or national consumption.

How, then, do you choose? Here are 10 guides I obtained from John G. Scott, president of

Determine the Source

(1) Read the label to determine the source of the water. Naturally, spring water which bubbles up spontaneously is the most desirable, and if the source is one of the world's famous health spas, you can be sure of the water's quality.

(2) Don't be misled by price. What is the yardstick of quality used by bottlers of these famous waters? The mineral content, temperature and flow must remain constant. Is the water free from urban wastes, detergents, pesticides, fallout?

(3) Don't be misled by the term "spring" either. There is quite a difference between natural spring water and reconstituted tap water. Other terms for reconstituted are "worked," "processed," or "treated."

What happens is that tap water is distilled or first cleaned up and then re-manufactured. In the later process, minerals and possibly fluorides are added, and then some natural spring water is put in too to justify the label of "spring."

Incidentally, some very pure water from deep wells may contain a high percentage of dissolved minerals such as chlorides and sulphates, making it unpalatable and unsaleable without expensive treatment.

When well water contains a lot of dissolved solids, it can be cheaper to distill or deionize city water supplies for bottling purposes.

Reprocess City Water

(4) Try to recall how long you've known about the water — whether it is popular through established merit or is simply a product of the "pollution period." As we have become increasingly apprehensive about the purity of water, the bottled water industry has attracted the attention of corporations seeking to diversify into some phase of ecology. Many of these companies are simply reprocessing water from municipal supplies.

(5) Check whether the water is always drawn from the same source. Some companies draw their water from a variety of springs in different areas so the taste is not constant. Also, some spring waters change seasonally and even daily.

(6) Note whether the container is made of glass or a synthetic material. Glass has virtually no chance of entering into chemical activity — picking up odors, taste and bacteria.

There is no synthetic container today which equals the inert function of glass.

(7) And is the bottle cap adequately sealed to guarantee there has been no substitution?

(8) Is the water so packaged that there has been no danger of air contamination?

(9) Does the water always taste the same whether you buy it in New York, Chicago or San Francisco? Testing laboratories use only bottled water that is uniform.

(10) Finally is the water tasty? The ideal bottled natural spring water is light.

Suppose Tricia's Cake Should Flop

BY ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON — The one thing you can say about CBS News is that it always goes with the experts. When Neil Armstrong and his crew took off for the moon, they hired Wally Schirra to sit next to Walter Cronkite and provide an astronaut's knowledge of what was happening.

Last week CBS announced it had hired Lynda Bird Johnson Robb to handle the color commentary for Tricia Nixon's wedding. At the same time the broadcasting company also signed up Miss Betty

Crocker to do the commentary on the wedding cake. The decision was made after er the controversy over the baking of the cake became the major issue of the wedding and dwarfed the actual marriage ceremony.

Miss Crocker will be seated next to Walter Cronkite during the nuptials.

"Hope and Pray"

"Good evening. This is Walter Cronkite and seated next to me at Mission Control is Betty Crocker. We are now waiting word if Tricia Nixon and Eddie Cox completed the first part of their mission, which was to get married. As you know, the couple has been blacked out on the dark side of the White House, and all we can do is sit here and hope and pray everything will turn out all right. Betty, after the couple completes the marriage vows, what will be the next step?"

"Walter, the next step is when they come out of the camera blackout. Tricia and Eddie will have to cut the wedding cake. This could be a very dangerous moment, although the couple has practiced it many times."

"Betty, we have in our studio a seven-foot replica of the wedding cake. Would you explain to the audience what problems Tricia and Eddie will have to contend with?"

Other Hazards

"Well, Walter, as you can see, the wedding cake is very high, weighs 350 pounds and has four tiers of pound cake and two dummy tiers of cardboard. The trick here is for Tricia and Eddie to cut into the pound cake without disturbing the dummy tiers. If Tricia were to miscalculate by a quarter of an inch and cut into the dummy tiers, the whole cake could fall down, and people would have to eat it off the floor."

"That's something I imagine Tricia and Eddie don't even want to think about. Betty. What are the other hazards they face in this crucial moment of the wedding?"

"Walter, the wedding cake has obviously been tested in rehearsal, but no one is quite sure what will happen when the couple actually cuts into the real one. Some experts predict that the inside will ooze out as soon as the crust is penetrated."

"Could this oozing be fatal, Betty?"

"No Walter, because there is a backup system for just such an eventuality. If cake started to ooze, the White House staff would go on red alert, and the guests would be handed soup plates instead of flat plates for the serving of the cake."

"Betty, we have heard so much lately about the instability of the wedding cake. Do you think these reports have been exaggerated?"

National Cake Agency

"Yes I do, Walter. Many different recipes were tried before the National Cake Agency arrived at this particular model."

"Now, when you are dealing with something as unknown as a wedding cake, you're bound to have different opinions as to what is the best type. You may have to sacrifice egg yolks for weight or butter for budgetary reasons. But the important thing is: Does the cake work? Will it serve the function for which it was constructed? If it does, this may be a big breakthrough in the baking industry and one that every American can be proud of."

"And what if for some unforeseeable reason it doesn't work, Betty?"

"Then I think for the safety of the guests they would have to abort the wedding."

Democrats Challenge Lucey Budget

MADISON (AP) — The state Assembly twice rejected by a single vote challenges to Gov. Patrick J. Lucey's proposed $1.99 billion budget Tuesday.

Dissenting Democrats authored both challenges to the Democratic governor's fiscal package for the 1971-73 biennium.

Democrats represent nearly two-thirds of the Assembly membership. Rifts had been suspected during a prolonged 6 1/2-hour caucus.

The rifts became evident when debate began on the Lucey budget which has been forwarded by the legislature's Joint Finance Committee.

The budget also faces opposition in the Republican-dominated Senate. A conference committee would have to work out differences.

A proposal to restore budget increases for the Department of Veterans Affairs was rejected 49-48. A similar 1971-73 vote figured in an amendment which would have excluded funds for Milwaukee's Stadium Freeway. The amendment eventually failed 50-47.

Close Votes

The votes were close despite assurances from Norman Anderson, the Democratic floor leader, that the freeway would not be built until the Department of Local Affairs and Development satisfies Milwaukee there will be adequate replacement of housing for families whose homes are razed for the interstate paving.

Rep. Paul Sicula of Milwaukee, author of the amendment to delete the freeway from the budget, said it was "probably the only effective way" to block the project.

His arguments were echoed and questioned by both Republicans and Democrats.

"Our problem today may well become your problem tomorrow," a Milwaukee suburb spokesman, Rep. F. James Sensenbrenner, R-Shorewood, told the Assembly.

"Let's forget the various special interests involved in building a road and think about the public's interest in the area of the highway," Rep. Edward Nager, D-Madison, pleaded.

"Sometimes the will of the people has to bend when progress is made," Rep. Manny Brown, D-Racine, said.

"Let's consider the federal funds involved," Rep. Merrill Stahlbaum, R-Waterford, said. "It would put men to work, and insure the client's privacy in men are out of work now."

Weaver Says Tenure Is Needed

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — University of Wisconsin President John C. Weaver says the system of academic tenure is needed "to protect those people who investigate and tamper with the thinking of society."

In a deeply divided society, university professors must be free from fear of losing their jobs for espousing "radical ideas," Weaver said.

Speaking Tuesday before the Senate Education Committee, he opposed a bill which would eliminate the firmly entrenched tenure system throughout the UW and state university systems.

Democratic Sen. Wayne Whitlow of Milwaukee, one of the bill's sponsors, said tenure makes it virtually impossible to get rid of instructors whose teaching abilities are standard or out of date.

Lifetime Employment

Whitlow challenged Weaver's assertion that tenure is not a lifetime employment.

"Once you get it," Whitlow said, "the only way you can be fired is by raping a woman on your way to robbing a bank so you'll be late to class."

Whitlow termed his measure a free enterprise bill because it would allow teaching jobs to be granted on a supply and demand basis.

Weaver said a UW professor may hold a permanent position on the faculty only after he passes a "seven-year probationary period."

The president stressed, however, tenure is not a guarantee of life employment.

If there is adequate proof a professor is shirking his duties or engaging in misconduct, he can be removed, Weaver said.

Cites Case

He cited a case in which two Milwaukee professors were stripped of their tenure last month by the Board of Regents.

Weaver said UW needs its tenure system to attract scholars.

"We want people who will feel free to discuss all types of ideas," he said. "Tenure is a condition I feel is indispensable for the flowering of the human mind."

Steve Zorn, representing the Teaching Assistants Association, suggested a union as an alternative to tenure.

Weaver rejected that idea.

"You don't effectively run an organization like the University of Wisconsin on the basis of an adversary relationship," he said. "That would rob the faculty of their professional integrity."

Tissue Mills Hike Water Recycling

MENASHA — Wisconsin Tissue Mills, manufacturer of paper and food-related paper products, has accepted delivery of a huge 19-ton Polydisk Filter Saveall machine from the Beloit Jones Division, Beloit Corp.

The new Saveall replaces the old machine, increasing the volume. The machine allows the firm to recycle more water and fiber in the papermaking process.

James E. Asmuth, Wisconsin Tissue president, said that installation of the Saveall and related process changes, estimated for completion July 1 at a cost of more than $400,000, will bring "substantial benefits" for both the company and its community in reducing the plant's fresh water usage, solids loss and waste water discharged into the Neenah-Menasha sewerage disposal system.

"Installation of our new Saveall is part of an ongoing program of planned improvements, to be completed at company expense over a period of several years. The improvements are Wisconsin Tissue's voluntary contribution to a better environment," Asmuth said.

Wisconsin Tissue, with manufacturing and converting plants on opposite shores of Little Lake Butte des Morts in Menasha, has about 450 employees. It is one of the country's major manufacturers of plain and printed napkins and placemats.

Bill Would Protect Newsmen's Rights

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Sen. Fred Risser, D-Madison, minority leader, Tuesday introduced a bill to protect newsmen from being required to disclose confidential news sources.

Risser noted that 17 states already have enacted the so-called "shield law" for newsmen.

The measure is essential to the guarantee of a free press, he said.

"We protect the sacredness of the religious confessional, we insure the client's privacy in his attorney's or doctor's office, yet we are unwilling to provide a guarantee of privacy for those would be sources of public information," he said.

Under the bill, Risser added, a newsman still would be held responsible in cases of slander and libel.

"In the past, newsmen have simply refused to disclose their sources of information and suffered whatever consequences may be imposed," he said.

"It's time we recognize the newsman's right to protect the privacy of his news sources."

The Madison Democrat offered similar proposals in the 1967 and 1969 legislative sessions.

Stronger Control of VTE District Boards Is Sought by State

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

MADISON — With the apparent consent of the local officials involved, the state is moving to apply more controls on the services and budgets of the district boards of vocational, technical and adult education.

The state budget bill, which reached the Assembly for first floor action this week, contains several key provisions for closer supervision and management authority by the state board of vocational education. Such proposals were contained in the original budget recommendations of Gov. Patrick Lucey. The fact that they emerged from the legislature's finance committee virtually untouched apparently shows the legislative mood on the subject.

One key provision would permit capital construction and expenditures for other facilities in the local districts only with the consent of the state board.

There have been suggestions that some of the capital commitments in the districts have not always been wise.

'Transitional Plan'

The temper of the legislature on the future development of the district vocational programs and their control also is suggested by a budget bill provision requiring the state board to prepare during the next year a "transitional plan" for the development of the schools and "improvements in state planning and management capabilities for vocational education."

One reason for the apparent acceptance by the local school authorities of a more effective state role in the direction of the vocational and technical training program may be evidential support of the vocational administration to accept a larger financial responsibility in vocational training.

The pending budget bill, which again retained without change the original propositions of the governor, asks for an increase in the level of state support of the schools from 33 per cent to 40 per cent next year and to 60 per cent thereafter.

That would represent a considerable reduction in the cost liability of the property taxpayers in the local vocational districts. As if to nail down such assurance, the legislators who wrote the budget bill also included a provision that the two mills on equalized valuation maximum vocational school tax levy now provided by law be reduced to 1.8 mills next year and 1.6 mills in succeeding years.

Maximum Rates

The local school taxes have risen steadily, with some districts now nearing the maximum rates. Only a few now are levying at less than 1.6 mills.

Another example of the firmer hand of the state in the future direction of the district schools as contemplated in the budget is a proposal for a uniform account system for the districts and a requirement for a standard fiscal year for financial operations and reporting purposes.

Most of the schools now operate on a calendar-year basis.

Normally local institutions are sensitive about state intervention in their affairs. But the capitol consensus appears to be acceptance by the local school authorities of a more effective state role in the direction of the vocational and technical training program may be evidential support of the vocational administration to accept a

Health Occupations Training Proposed

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The Wisconsin Association of School District Administrators has joined in the movement for the development of health career occupational training as a part of the vocational school services of the high schools.

There is a critical need for workers in health occupation fields, the so-called paramedical jobs, the association declares in a report made public here, and it is most acute in the rural areas of the state because the highest concentration of health workers is in the urban areas.

"A program should be instituted through comprehensive high schools to insure that adequate vocations are supplied for the improvement of rural health services," the vocational committee of the association asserted.

The declaration comes at a time of growing interest in the subject by schoolmen, according to State Superintendent William C. Kahl. The state school officer reports that he has recently approved the inauguration of a pilot program in the high school at Union Grove Racine County, to demonstrate the opportunities for health service training at the high school level.

Kahl suggested that there is not yet a general appreciation of the evolution of vocational courses in many of the high schools of Wisconsin.

He said his department will develop guidelines for the development of a high school health occupations program according to the experience of the Union Grove demonstration project.

He intends also to name a state advisory committee for health occupations training programs that will be used by interested administrators in the high schools throughout the state, he added.

Roadside Preservation Program Gets Boost

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — After years of patient exhortation by a few champions of environmental resource protection, a significant demonstration of the opportunities for preserving one of the state's most ignored resource value apparently is assured.

The Southeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning commission with the cordial endorsement of the Natural Resources Council of State Agencies will demonstrate the value of planned protection of the frequently ignored rural roadside.

The Commission is the principal regional planning agency in the state, having jurisdiction in the populous and rapidly urbanizing counties in the Milwaukee area. One of its major objectives is the designation and preservation of environmental corridors within the region, including the best remaining elements of the natural resource base of the district and watersheds in natural and open use.

The state Department of Transportation, with the help of the state Department of Natural Resources will prepare a "conservation roads" plan for the Southeastern Commission. With the targets identified, the commission intends to organize a program of protecting natural vegetation, including grass, wildflowers, shrub growth and others, according to the beautification program outlined several years ago by the Natural Resources Council but thus far indifferently received by county governments.

The Commission demonstration in a strategic section of the state will help to generate similar enterprises elsewhere, officials hope.

About 65 miles of especially scenic roadsides in the southeast counties will be designated for protection and treatment. There will be erosion controls, prohibition of the use of herbicides and their removal of vegetation, and probably some planting in selected locations.

Officials say that in some situations the normal road design standards may be modified, with respect to the steepness of gradients, shorter sight distances, narrower shoulders and shorter radius curves as required. Ultimately, officials hope, a special state fund may be established to permit the state to reimburse counties and towns that undertake such approved programs.

The guiding spirit behind the demonstration has been Cyril Kabat of the DNR staff, who has urged such a program without significant response for most of the last decade.
